“Our country is not just very large in its territory, but also very beautiful. Its beauty is not only in the riches of its nature; most of all, its beauty is in its people. They are our main treasure. Our people are very open-hearted, especially in the regions. Very radiant people...” These are the words of someone who knows Russia and its residents very well: Vladimir Putin.

We all know that when we travel, we don’t just remember things like rivers and mountains, museums and statues. Most of all we remember the people we meet, the way they talk, light a bonfire or pour wine, how they laugh or sing and play the guitar. Their thoughts also stay with you forever: they may not be all that original, you may have heard or read them somewhere before, but only after a chance encounter do you suddenly realize their wisdom.

Russia is vast, with her “many forests, fields and rivers”, as a well-known Russian song says. But foreign visitors for some reason are reluctant to go beyond St. Petersburg, Moscow and the Golden Ring. So they don’t get to encounter the many beautiful and open-hearted people of Russia’s boundless regions.

Summer is in full swing. Don’t miss this most essential time of year. You can stray from your bride on your wedding day, they say, but never stray from your summer trip!

Believe me, the best place to spend your summer vacation is Russia. In this issue, you’ll discover many destinations that take you beyond the standard tours of the two Russian capitals. The further you go from Red Square, the more interesting the places and the people you will meet... It couldn’t be any other way in a country that spreads across half the globe. You’ll be certain to have interesting travels and meet unique people in Russia.

And the remote areas of Russia are especially good in the summer. In Russian, the word for “year” is synonymous with the word for “summer.” You are as many years old as you’ve spent summers on earth. If you’ve ever smelled a haystack in a Siberian village, if you’ve fished from a wooden rowboat and cooked fish chowder on the fire instead of ordering some fish delicacy in Cafe Pushkin on Tverskaya in Moscow, you’ve spent your summer the right way. It means you have visited Russia for real.

In the Sudislavsky district of Kostroma Region, scientists have discovered marine fauna fossils of the Cretaceous period of the Mesozoic era, dating back about 80 million years BCE. Among them are ammonite molluscs (genus Polyptychites), bivalve molluscs, brachiopods, belemnites and the bones of marine vertebrates. All the molluscs have been sent for detailed studies, after which they will find a place in Kostroma’s museums.

Robinson Among the Bears

The experienced explorer and archaeologist Nikolai Spizhevoi has tried out the role of Robinson Crusoe: he lived for several days among the bears on an uninhabited island, Chakmut, in the Amur Estuary on the shores of the Khabarovsk Region. The land belongs to a Moscow entrepreneur who is going to develop ecotourism and “Robinson Crusoe Tourism” here — offering the opportunity to live on an uninhabited island and try the role of Robinson Crusoe. The first to try it was 72-year-old Nikolai Spizhevoi, living in a tent for almost a week, next to bears who came to feast on seals. It turned out that the island’s huge cliff is connected to the mainland by a shallow rocky beach. When the tide is low, it is possible to get to the island almost without getting wet, something that the bears take advantage of. Nikolai kept scaring off the bears with firecrackers, so they didn’t approach him. The extreme element notwithstanding, this “Robinson Crusoe” remained very pleased with his adventure: the local landscape is almost indistinguishable from the famous Shantar Islands, he said.

electronic visa

Kaliningrad THE INTRODUCTION OF FREE E-VISAS FROM JULY 1 WAS AN IMPORTANT EVENT FOR THE KALININGRAD REGION.

Tourists from 53 countries can now obtain a visa to Russia without leaving their homes: all they have to do is to fill out an e-form at the Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs site: evisa.kdmid.ru.

To obtain this visa, no invitation or hotel reservation confirmation, or any other document confirming the trip's purpose, is required. The processing period of the e-visa is no more than four days. This visa is valid for 30 days and allows the visitor to stay in the Kaliningrad region for no more than eight days from the moment of entry. Tourists have been able to obtain e-visas for the Far East since 2017.
STEEL ROUTE
Interested in seeing a gigantic cauldron with molten metal rotate just a few feet away from you? Or keen to watch the control panel of a rolling mill machine, which looks just like a spaceship’s control panel? You can now take a tour of the Magnitogorsk Iron and Steel Works, where several themed itineraries have been developed. One is “Taming the Fire”, a tour of the blast furnace, the largest in Russia, and its heavy-duty hot mill. Visitors have to go through introductory safety training, use individual protective gear, and follow simple but compulsory rules. Tours cost from $11 per person.

RECREATION FOR THE RICH
Experts from the online booking service Aviasales have highlighted the most expensive Russian hotels this summer. The Crimean Breeze residence, located 30 kilometers from Yalta, was ranked at number one: a night in its four-room villa will cost $5,150, including breakfast, free Wi-Fi, a coffee-maker and a view of the sea and the park. Another resort, Mriya Resort & Spa, came in second: to stay in a two-story villa there, with a terrace and private heated pool, tourists pay $3,970 per day. The Rodina Grand Hotel & SPA in Sochi ranked third, with a junior suite with garden view costing $2,900 per night.

SUBSIDIES FOR TOURISTS
A pilot project for subsidizing travel companies that ensure an influx of foreign tourists to Russia from Germany, Israel, the United States, Japan, Korea, India, Great Britain, Spain, Italy and France will be launched this autumn. The payments will partially reimburse the expenses that Russian organizations spend on receiving foreign guests. In 2019, about $9 million was allocated for the programme.
River cabriolets

THIS SUMMER SEASON, 10 NEW BRIGHTLY COLOURED RIVER BOATS OF THE RADISSON ROYAL FLEET HAVE APPEARED ON THE MOSKVA RIVER.

The main characteristic of these new "cabriolets", with their convertible telescopic roofs, is their regular routes with stops at the major sightseeing points of the historic center. There are daily departures from two terminals, “Hotel Ukraina” and “Gorky Park”. The river buses make eight stops, with the interval between departures 30 minutes. Each boat offers an audio guide in six languages, and food and drinks are available. Tickets are sold on board. Adult tickets cost $9.50, children’s $6.
The road to mud

Crimea A NEW ROAD IS BEING BUILT TO LAKE CHOIRAK NEAR KERCH.

A unique reservoir with medicinal properties on the Kerch Peninsula, which vacationers visit for its healing mud. It is considered beneficial for musculoskeletal, nervous-system and gynaecological disorders, as well as for other diseases. Many tourists take a mud solution away with them to repeat the procedure at home. For a swim, the nearby Azov Sea is ideal, and soon there will be a new road there.

WALKING OVER THE ABYSS
Ski resorts in Sochi are becoming more and more popular in the summer season as their owners think up new forms of entertainment for tourists. For example, the Rosa Khutor resort now offers rodelbahn, or summer sledding, Alpine swings and a wooden suspension bridge at a height of 2,320 meters.

A NEW PORT ON THE VOLGA
An unprecedented passenger transfer hub for Russia is being created at the Zavidovo resort in the Tver Region, connecting waterways with the train and road system. A new port will be built to dock cruise ships at the confluence of the Shosha and Volga rivers. The average travel time from Leningrad station to Zavidovo is currently about an hour by the Lastochka electric train, and it will now take the same time to travel by car from Moscow on the newly opened highway.

FIVE-STAR ALTAI
The founder of the international company 2GIS, which develops maps and guide services, has opened a five-star hotel in the Altai Republic, with a total investment of $4.7 million, which it is planned will be recouped over eight years. Klever Resort & Spa will be the third hotel of this level in the region. The new 160-room hotel was created at the Solnechnaya Dolina resort, including reconstruction of the existing facility and creation of 12 new buildings.

Sabantuy with Seagal
Bashkoria
THE TRADITIONAL ANNUAL BASHKIR HOLIDAY WAS CELEBRATED IN THE ABZELILOVSKY DISTRICT OF THE BASHKORTOSTAN REPUBLIC.

In the ethnic village, set up in the open air, there was the chance to meet local residents, drink kumis (mare’s milk) and eat honey. The most spectacular events were the horse races and a kuresh, a traditional wrestling match. The VIP guest of the festival was the well-known Hollywood actor Steven Seagal, who was invited onto the wrestling mat by Radyi Khabirov, acting head of the Republic. They didn’t get to wrestle, but the head of the region did show Seagal the basic rules of combat.

BRIGHT LIFE OF ST. PETERSBURG

IT'S LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT WITH ST. PETERSBURG — THIS IS THE CITY OF DAYDREAMING, A PLACE THAT STIMULATES THE CREATIVITY! AS THE MARQUIS DE CUSTINE, THE FRENCH TRAVELLER AND WRITER, WROTE IN AMAZEMENT: "ST. PETERSBURG OVERWHELMs YOUR MIND MORE THAN YOUR EYE!" THE CITY OF PETER THE GREAT HAS ALWAYS ATTRACTED VISITORS FOR ITS GRANDEUR, HISTORY AND VIBRANT, EVENTFUL LIFE. THOSE WHO COME HERE WILL NEVER FEEL BORED.

TEXT: NIKITA BELOV
The city is famous not only for its rich cultural life, museums and theatres, but also for large colourful festivals and parades. It regularly hosts major sporting and business events.

Start from St. Petersburg

St. Petersburg is widely thought of as the best city to start getting to know Russia. Answering the question, “Which Russian city do you recommend travellers to visit first in Russia?”, 56 percent of respondents on Aviasales, the popular booking website, voted for St. Petersburg. Only 32 percent recommended foreign visitors to start with Moscow, while Kazan ranked third with 7 percent of votes, and Sochi came fifth with just 5 percent.

Tourist Police

The city’s tourist police, established ahead of the World Cup 2018, continues to operate as a regular law enforcement unit. According to Yevgeny Pantkevich, the head of St. Petersburg’s Tourism Development Committee, the City Tourism and Information Bureau was involved in recruiting and training the unit’s officers: they are a well-trained and professional team, who speak English and are always available to help travellers.

The tourist police patrol Palace Square, Vosstaniya Square, St. Isaac’s Square, and the Church of the Saviour on Spilled Blood from 11:00 to 21:30, and can give directions or provide help to travellers in any emergency.

Dear friends,

We are delighted to welcome you to St. Petersburg!

In 2019, the city is honoured to host the 23rd UN General Assembly of the World Tourism Organization (UNWTO). This is a historic event for our country and its Northern capital. We value the attention of world tourism professionals towards our city, and are therefore preparing to host the event at the highest level.

Tourism is one of the top priorities in the socio-economic development of the city. More than eight million guests visit St. Petersburg every year to see its unique cultural and historic heritage, and enjoy theatre and musical events.

Every year the city receives one of the prestigious World Travel Awards. In the St. Petersburg region, the development of business tourism, congress tourism, and exhibition activities is a high priority: such fields offer considerable economic potential. The number of major international business events held in the city is growing annually. The “Ambassador of St. Petersburg” programme has been a success.

The government of St. Petersburg pays serious attention to promoting the city’s tourism potential both in Russia and abroad. We are developing business and event tourism and creating an infrastructure that will open new opportunities for visitors to become acquainted with our city. Our plans include expanding yachting and nautical tourism, as well as culinary, medical and other fields of tourism.

We wish the magazine’s readers bright impressions of St. Petersburg.

Film Debuts on New Holland Island

The “New Holland: Cultural Urbanization” project is launching an International Festival of Debut Films on New Holland Island, which will run for the first time in 2020.

The festival’s mission is to support original and authentic talents and projects and introduce new names to world cinema. The international competition will include short and full-length features, the full-length category including only feature films, while the shorts programme includes documentaries, experimental works and feature films on an equal basis.

A three-day preview in July premiered Russian and international films, held discussions with directors, and presented video art and lectures by teachers at top international film schools, as well as a round-table

“Scarlet Sails” Sets a New Record
The “Scarlet Sails” festival, held in St. Petersburg on the night of June 23/24, brought together 1.4 million people — 200,000 more than in 2018.

“Scarlet Sails” is a public event that marks the end of the school year, and is held annually in late June. The spectacular show has long a tourist highlight of St. Petersburg, widely popular with European visitors. It begins with a staged theatre show on Palace Square and continues with concerts and fireworks on the Neva and the Peter and Paul Fortress. Its climax is the appearance of a tall ship sporting spectacular scarlet sails, accompanied by fireworks and special musical accompaniment.

Yachting on the Baltic
More than 100,000 people took part in “Baltic Yachting Week”, held on the beach at the Peter and Paul Fortress in mid-June.

For three days, the location on the Neva hosted events where guests could meet well-known sailors, try their hand at shipbuilding classes, learn to tie knots in the Sea Village, explore different classes of yachts, and enroll in the St. Petersburg yachting school. They could also try windsurfing and ship out on a captain’s galley, but the most popular events were the presentations by veteran navigators and the workshops for kids. About 15,000 people visited Sea Village during the event.

Simultaneously, St. Petersburg hosted the fifth stage of the Russian National Sailing League’s regatta with 20 top-rated teams.

Another spectacular event featured some of Russia’s top windsurfers, who made a great show at the beach.

Russian and foreign musicians appeared in the evening’s concert performance, which was opened by the Chest cover band and Yoel Gonzalez’s PHILORITMICA sextet from Cuba. Maxim Leonidov was the concert’s headliner, and the show had a grand finale in the form of the “Sails Ballet” show, which had sailboats waltzing on the water in neon lights to Vivaldi, followed by the closing festival fireworks. STARS AWARDED TO REGIONS

TOURISM & LEISURE IN RUSSIA MAGAZINE AND THE RATING CENTRE FOR INFORMATION COMMUNICATIONS HAVE CONDUCTED NEW RESEARCH INTO INBOUND TOURISM, THE RELATIVE TOURISM APPEAL OF RUSSIA’S REGIONS, AND THEIR POPULARITY WITH FOREIGN TOURISTS.
For a number of years now the number of foreign tourists coming to Russia has been steadily increasing. According to the World Tourism Organization (UNWTO), Russia ranks as #16 in the world and #9 in Europe by number of foreign tourists (24.3 million foreign tourists visited in 2017). The next, 23rd General Assembly of the World Tourist Organization will be held in St. Petersburg from 9-13 September 2019, and 156 countries will be represented.

In the near future the Russian Ministry of Economic Development in cooperation with the Federal Agency for Tourism (Rosturizm) will be issuing the new Strategy for Tourism Development in the Russian Federation up to the year 2035. According to the developers’ plan, by 2035 there will be a twofold increase in the number of domestic tourist trips for each resident of the Russian Federation (currently 0.4 trips per resident). At the same time, by 2035 tourism’s share in the country’s GDP will grow from the current 3.8% to 6%. Export of tourism services will grow to 28.6 billion US dollars (compared to 8.9 billion in 2017.) According to the UNWTO report, by 2035 Russia will join the top ten world tourist destinations.

The Russian Federal State Statistics Service (Rosstat) maintains records of foreign tourists by region, exclusively based on the number of stays at collective accommodation facilities, such as hotels. Preliminary records indicate that the number of foreign nationals who stayed in collective accommodation facilities in Russia in 2018, irrespective of the purpose and... length of stay, was 10.2 million; while in 2017 the number was slightly above 8 million.

There is also information from the Border Service of the FSB regarding the number of foreign nationals entering Russia, according to which, 4.19 million foreign visitors came to Russia in 2018 as tourists. The largest numbers came from the following countries: China (1,256,515 people), Germany (451,467), the Republic of Korea (324,308), the USA (227,656), Israel (163,664), Italy (126,875), Great Britain (125,710), France (116,513), Spain (85,314), and Japan (61,222).

The following criteria were used to determine a region’s place in the rankings in terms of inbound tourism:

- The total number of foreign tourists who stayed in collective accommodation facilities according to the Russian Federal State Statistics Service records for 2018.
- The yearly number of foreign tourists per 1,000 permanent residents of the region.
- The increase or decrease in the number of foreign tourists compared to the previous calendar year.

A table was prepared for each of the criteria with a corresponding ranking from 1st to 85th place. First place in each ranking was awarded 8.5 points. For each subsequent place, 0.1 points were deducted. Then, the three preliminary tables were combined, and the frontrunners and outsiders of the 2019 National Rating for Inbound Tourism were identified according to the total sum of the points they had received.

The regions were separated into groups that were given informal names, chosen to reflect the accepted worldwide classification of hotels and services: “five-star”, “four-star”, and “three-star”.

2019 NATIONAL RATING FOR INBOUND TOURISM

Primorye is listed in third place: for a number of years now it has experienced a significant rise in the number of foreign tourists, especially from its Asian neighbors. Primorye showed better results than Moscow Region, which is listed in fourth place, both in the number of foreign tourists per 1,000 residents and the increase in the total number of foreign tourists. It is the only region of the Russian Far East that made it into the “five-star” category.

Krasnodar Territory, listed in 5th place, is one of the nine regions of the top 20 that hosted games of the 2018 FIFA World Cup. The increase in the number of tourists compared with the previous year allowed them to take leading positions in the ranking. Thus, Sverdlovsk Region, where the capital city Ekaterinburg hosted World Cup matches, was the only one of the Ural Federal Okrug regions to make it into the top group. However, it would be wrong to explain these regions’ high ranking solely by their participation in the 2018 World Cup. Ekaterinburg, for example, is the most important commercial center in the Ural Region. Krasnodar Territory offers sea, beaches and health resorts that are all very popular with tourists from the neighboring CIS countries.

Primorye showed better results than Moscow Region, which is listed in fourth place, both in the number of foreign tourists per 1,000 residents and the increase in the total number of foreign tourists. It is the only region of the Russian Far East that made it into the “five-star” category.

Krasnodar Territory, listed in 5th place, is one of the nine regions of the top 20 that hosted games of the 2018 FIFA World Cup. The increase in the number of tourists compared with the previous year allowed them to take leading positions in the ranking. Thus, Sverdlovsk Region, where the capital city Ekaterinburg hosted World Cup matches, was the only one of the Ural Federal Okrug regions to make it into the top group. The fact that Murmansk Region made it into the Top 20 is explained by its geography: most of its territory

VERBATIM

SERGEY LAVROV,
Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Russian Federation:

"Russia is incredibly rich in culture, history, and natural beauty. There are 29 UNESCO World Heritage Sites in our country, 26 resorts and federal resort regions, and more than 140,000 tourist attractions, with 150 of them rated as of special significance. Last year, the FIFA World Cup proved to be an extraordinary event — it would be no exaggeration to call it a true pinnacle of people's diplomacy. Millions of foreign guests came to our country and saw modern Russia and its open, friendly and hospitable people with their own eyes. The Ministry of Foreign Affairs makes a significant contribution to overall efforts to developing the tourist industry. We have visa-free entry agreements with many countries, and we are planning to add more nations to this group. As we continue to develop our electronic visa system in this country, we will consider the possibility of simplifying the visa requirements for foreign nationals who arrive to Moscow and the Moscow region via international airports. Our colleagues in St. Petersburg and Leningrad Region are also interested in such a system."

Fishing on Sakhalin is an amazing experience. A helicopter picks up tourists in Tomtor village in eastern Yakutia. Here at the so-called “Cold Pole”, the average annual temperature is 16 degrees below zero. The charm and beauty of Tuva’s girls attracts travellers from all over the world.
Zhdanko Mountain Range: a setting suitable for filming a sequel to the Lord of the Rings.
ISLAND EXOTICA
Sakhalin is the only region of Russia that consists entirely of islands. There are 59 islands in the region, including Sakhalin, Moneron, Ush Island, Kamen Opasnosti, Tuleniy, and the Kuril Islands.

ORIENTAL FLAVOR
The Southern part of Sakhalin was part of Japan from 1905 to 1945. Japanese heritage can still be seen in the architecture, culture and people’s daily lives.

REGIONAL ETHNOGRAPHY MUSEUM
This Sakhalin museum is considered one of the most interesting in Russia both for its exhibitions and its architecture. It is housed in the building of the Karafuto Prefecture, built in 1937 during Japanese imperial rule.

ASTONISHING NATURE
The Sakhalin Region has a great number of amazing places: some easy to access and others that are completely isolated from civilization.

EXCELLENT FISHING
You can enjoy both river and sea fishing in Sakhalin. More than that, you can learn about crab and sea urchin fishing, and give ice fishing a try. During the winter season, fishermen prefer to go out to sea for wolffish and saffron cod. In early summer, the catch is white-spotted char and masu salmon. In July, humpback salmon, and in the north of the island, in the bays and the sea close to river estuaries, you can catch and release endangered taimen. The fishing season continues until mid-November.

SEAFOOD DELICACIES
Red caviar (“five-minute caviar”), crab, shrimp, oysters, sea urchin, various red fish, smelts and much more will delight any foodie!
DIVERSE CUISINE
For historic reasons, Japanese and Korean cuisine are very popular in Sakhalin. Restaurants serving Japanese and Korean food can be found on practically every corner. You can’t leave Sakhalin without tasting pyanse, traditional bibimbab or hemultan, as well as Korean salads made with fern and burdock, and the freshest sashimi and sushi.

CINEMA FOR EVERYONE
Each year in late August and early September, the International Krai Sveta Film Festival takes place in Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk. The festival draws film fans and industry professionals from all over the world. The screenings are free, and professionals offer master classes and workshops during the festival.

9  THE MYSTERIOUS KURILS
This region offers what millions of people dream about: to visit the islands of inspiration and wonderful nature.

10  GORNYI VOZDUKH RESORT
The largest ski resort in the Russian Far East, Gornyi Vozdukh, is located in the very center of Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk. Here there are 16 ski trails 25 kilometers long, gondola and chair lifts, two chair and T-bar lifts, and four world-class ski zones. The middle and upper areas of the Gornyi Vozdukh resort are excellent observation points, from which you can see the region's capital spread out before you.

11  ANIVA LIGHTHOUSE
While on a boat trip along the west coast of Tonino Aniva Peninsula, you can see and visit this historical monument and miracle of engineering. It was built in 1939, on the small Sivuchya Cliff, near the rocky, hard-to-reach Aniva Cape. It was extremely difficult to build the lighthouse here because all the materials had to be brought in by boat under rough sea conditions. The project's designer was a Japanese engineer, Miura Sinobu, a graduate of the technical college in Kanagava. The tower is 31 meters high, and the light is at 40 meters above sea level. The tower had nine floors. The basement housed a diesel engine and accumulator room. A kitchen and a storeroom occupied the first floor and an extension to the main building; on the second floor were a radio cabin, the watchman's living quarters and an operator's room. The tower's third, fourth and fifth floors had rooms with enough living space for 12 people. In the central part of the tower was a tube encasing a pendulum — 270 kg weight — which was wound every three hours to make the optical system move. The range of the lighthouse was 17.5 miles. In the 1990s, the lighthouse was powered by an autonomous isotope generator. Today, it works on a simple accumulator charged by solar batteries. TLR
In Sakhalin, traditional Russian dishes are replaced by Korean cuisine. The culinary traditions came to Sakhalin in the 20th century, when Korean settlers arrived on the island during the Japanese mobilization.

People love to cook Korean dishes here, and they do it well, in restaurants and homes alike. And yet, Sakhalin cuisine differs from the dishes served in Korea. Sakhalin Korean food is considered to be the real food of peasants, that has maintained its authenticity due to the way the island acts as a kind of reserve.

It is fairly simple to cook such dishes because you can find many ingredients in the sea and right under your feet: orlyak fern, wild leek, burdock, seaweed, and grapes. In addition, there is a great variety of seafood, meat, and rice (which is the staple).

The main difference between Sakhalin and Korean cuisine is panchan. These are snacks that are served as side dishes. The Sakhalin panchan is unique, and such snacks and salads can be found nowhere else in

GASTRONOMIC ABUNDANCE

SAKHALIN CUISINE IS UNIQUE. IT COMBINES ELEMENTS OF RUSSIAN, KOREAN, JAPANESE AND EVEN MANCHURIAN-CHINESE CUISINE. THE LOCALS MOSTLY EAT SEA FOOD, VARIOUS FISH, WILD HERBS, AND TRADITIONAL JAPANESE AND KOREAN DISHES. HEMULTAN (SPICY SEAFOOD SOUP) AND PYNSE (STEAMED BUNS WITH CABBAGE OR MEAT FILLING) ARE STAPLE FOOD IN SAKHALIN, JUST LIKE BORSCHT OR PIROZHKI ARE ELSEWHERE IN RUSSIA.

Oysters don’t have to be French.

Scallops are best eaten raw or with soy sauce. The unusual combination will impress any foodie.

You can buy tubukimchi and chaltok in grocery stores.

When chum salmon and humpback salmon are in season, the locals make five-minute caviar. Fresh, washed roe is doused in strong brine (tuzluk) and stirred for five minutes.

The Asian style of service is to have numerous dishes on the table simultaneously.
For instance, you can find the following at the Sakhalin market and stores: snails and cucumbers in spicy sauce, khe made with pollock, roasted fern with sesame oil and fried onion dressing, sweet seaweed, dried spicy pollock, sprouted soy (mash-mash), burdock salad, dried spicy anchovy, combu maki (fish wrapped in sweet seaweed leaves), and many other salads and side dishes. In specialized departments, there are homemade tubu (the same as tofu), chaltok (soft balls made of rice flour with red bean filling), yellow marinated radish, takuan, and various Korean sauces and dressings, such as soy pastes, kochudyan and samdyan.

You can also find a lot of produce from Japan and Korea at supermarkets and street markets. Among them are all sorts of sweets: candy, cookies, ice cream and dozens of sauces, tasty instant noodles of great quality, and other snacks and drinks. At fish markets, you can buy caviar, red and white fish, octopus, calamari, whole crabs, whelk, shrimp and dried smelt. You must buy and try bilberry syrup, as well — you won’t forget its tangy, bright flavor and smell.

This, of course, doesn’t mean that people don’t like the usual Russian and European dishes on Sakhalin. But even traditional recipes have a local island zest. For instance, one of the restaurants in Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk offers black pelmeni with Kamchatka crab filling or pelmeni filled with pork and kimchi. Another Sakhalin establishment serves pizza called Kimchizhar, with pork and kimchi toppings instead of traditional Italian pepperoni. TLR
Tourism & Leisure in Russia offers you seven options for interesting and unforgettable vacations on the shore of the Sea of Japan. You can try out lots of exciting activities in Vladivostok, including paddling on a dragon boat, catching the waves on a surfboard or SUP, canoeing or kayaking, or taking a sea cruise.

Boat trips

Two cable-stayed bridges, the Golden Bridge over the Golden Horn Bay and the Russian Bridge over the Eastern Bosphorus, are the main landmarks and sights of Vladivostok. On the “Vladivostok Bridges” boat trip, you will see them from the sea in all their glory, learn the history of their construction and admire unique panoramic views of the capital of Primorye, accompanied by the crash of waves and the cry of seagulls.

Comfortable boats depart from Pier 36 on Korabelnaya Naberezhnaya.

every hour from 12:00 to 18:00. The trip lasts for one hour.

In the summer months, there are also two-hour trips available entitled “Sea Panorama” and “Sea Sunset”.

SUP trips
Vladivostok can be called the SUP-capital of Russia without exaggeration. The SUP (Stand Up Paddle Board) has become an indispensable part of seaside holidays. And, even if you don’t have your own board, you can easily join the ranks of SUP-surfers. With the onset of summer weather, organized SUP trips are offered in Vladivostok, and anyone who wants to can take part, regardless of age or physical fitness. Kids from 9 years old can paddle a board by themselves. Younger kids can share a board with a parent or instructor.

The most popular routes are to: the Basargin Lighthouse (starting from Patrokl Bay), the Primorsky Aquarium (starting from Paris Bay), Truda Bay, Helena Island (starting from the Canal), Tobizin Peninsula (starting from Karpinsky Bay) and Shkot Island (starting from New Dzhigit Bay). The route is chosen depending on the direction and strength of the wind.

Surfing
You can catch a wave without going out of town in Vladivostok. From May to October, the Swell surf camp and surf school are open on Russky Island on Akhlestyshev Peninsula. This is the only school of surfing in... sea and rich wildlife: sea urchins, starfish, sea anemones, and a variety of crabs, birds and fish. On the nearby islands, there are colonies of spotted seals. In spring and autumn, whales come to Peter the Great Bay, and you can even see them within the city limits. A kayak allows you to move along the very edge of the water, sliding by so quietly you won’t frighten even the most cautious inhabitants.

Kayaking
The waters around Vladivostok are great for sea kayaking. You will find rugged coastline, calm and warm sea, and opportunities to spot sea otters, seals, and whales. The kayaking routes include the coasts of Russky Island, from the rocky capes of Tobizin, and Shkot Island to the serene Novik Bay. You can spend a weekend not far from Vladivostok on the islands Popov and Reyneke as well. Resorts in the Khasansky District also offer kayaking tours.

Cliff diving
This fashionable term means jumping into the sea from rocks of different heights, the favorite and familiar fun of many seaside boys. Today, cliff diving is officially recognized as a sport, and there are even cliff diving world championships.

The jumping spot is chosen based on several parameters: the height and steepness of the cliff, and the depth and size of the bay. The Sun Keepers have travelled all around the coast to make up a list of the TOP-10 cliff diving spots in Primorye: Edelstein Cape (Vladivostok), Tobizin Cape (Russky Island), Malenkiy Peninsula (Popov Island), Vikenta Island (Reyneke Island), Red Cliffs (Rikord Island), Alekseev Bay (Gamov Peninsula), Stenin Cape (Trinity Bay), Polosatik Cape (Podjapolskoye), Silin Cape (Valentin) and Tasovaya Bay (Preobrazheniye).

Snorkeling
You don’t have to take diving courses and buy expensive equipment to see the underwater world of the Sea of Japan with your own eyes. If you are clever about it, snorkeling will give you plenty of vivid impressions.

Remember, if you are swimming without a wetsuit, the comfortable temperature for snorkeling should be at least 20°C. But you should not swim for more than thirty minutes even in warm water. Otherwise you can get hypothermia. That’s why a wetsuit, even the simplest 2-3 millimeters thick “shorty” (with short sleeves and trouser-legs) will significantly increase your possibilities.

The bays of Russky Island, as well as anywhere along the “wild” coast of southern Primorye, are ideal for snorkeling. Opt for places away from river estuaries and large sandy beaches to enjoy swimming in clear waters.

The capital of Primorye that has its stationary base within the city limits.

At the school, you learn the basics of safe surfing and discover how to ride through the surf, catch waves, jump up on your board, riding along a wave, and make simple turns.

You can come to the camp at any time to relax, sunbathe, chat, sing songs with a guitar or just lie in a hammock under the stars. You are also welcome to stay with your own tent (or rent one on-site), or live comfortably in a yurt or large tent. The camp has showers, WCs, kitchen, laundry facilities and electricity.

An amazing place, indescribable emotions, stunningly beautiful nature, impressions that will stay with you all your life — these are the words of tourists from all corners of the world who have visited Kamchatka at least once.

Located in the very far east of Russia, this region may seem inaccessible to many, but reaching the peninsula is not as hard as it can seem at first glance. It is only a few hours by air travel from major Russian cities, and it’s a port-of-call included... in dozens of sea cruises. And once they’ve reached Kamchatka, tourists are in for a truly incredible adventure!

Kamchatka Volcanoes
There are 30 active and 300 dormant volcanoes in Kamchatka. Each of them has its own unique qualities and character. To ascend the volcanoes, you will need to come in summer. The most visited by tourists are the Avachinsky, Mutnovsky and Gorely volcanoes, and even novice hikers are able to climb them. In the winter, you can reach the foothills of the volcanoes by snowmobile.

The Valley of Geysers
The unique Valley of Geysers is one of Kamchatka’s world-famous attractions. You can only reach it by helicopter, and the flight one-way takes no more than two hours. More than 40 geysers and numerous thermal springs are concentrated in this unique place. Tourists who have visited the Valley of the Geysers say that you can hear the earth breathing here.

Kurile Lake
You can meet the best-known inhabitants of Kamchatka’s animal kingdom — bears — by taking a helicopter trip to Kurile Lake. Moreover, these predators pose no threat at all to man here. The lake is the world’s largest spawning site for salmon, so the bears are always well-fed and happy with life. You can see dozens of these pigeon-toed animals at once while they “fish” in the lake; they pay no attention whatsoever to people.

Sled dog kennels
The Beringia, a traditional Kamchatka dog sled race, jump-started dog sledding as a sport on the peninsula. It takes place annually and is the main event of the winter season. There are several dog sled kennels located in the vicinity of the region’s capital. Kamchatka’s sled dogs — huskies, laikas, samoyeds and malamutes — greet kennel visitors with loud barking and friendly “embraces”. At the kennels, you can ride a dog sled as a passenger or try your hand at driving.

Thermal springs
Near Petropavlovsk-Kamchatksky, there are dozens of hot thermal pools whose waters have unique healing properties. The Paratunka resort region has spa and health resorts that cater to any taste. Most pools here are outdoors and open 24/7. It’s a special delight to swim in hot curative waters in winter, when everything around you is covered in banks of snow, with a cloud of steam rising above the pool.

GETTING THERE

How to get there
Kamchatka has regular flight connections with Russia’s major cities — Moscow, Novosibirsk, Vladivostok, Khabarovsk, and Yuzhno-Sakhalinsk in the Far East, and many others. In the summer, seasonal flights to the U.S. (Anchorage, Alaska) are also available.

Where to stay
Excellent service and friendly staff await you at the peninsula’s hotels:

- Nachalnik Kamchatki (not rated), Petropavlovsk (3-star), Geyser (3-star), Komandor (not rated), and Severnye Priklyuchiennyi Park Hotel.

What to eat
Many tourists visit this region for Far-Eastern cuisine, with its seafood, fish and red caviar. Come visit Kamchatka Local Kitchen restaurant, Kalelyn ethnic food cafe, Pastrami wine and gastro bar, Butcher meat and wine restaurant, or Da Vinci restaurant — you won’t regret it!

What to buy
You can buy traditional Kamchatka souvenirs and arts and crafts items in the ethnic souvenir shops, such as Shaman, Nulevaya Versta, Medveditsa and Kamchatskaya Faktoriya. You can also buy traditional Kamchatka clothes in Kamcha-Shop.

t was early December. Ulan-Ude, Buryatia’s capital city, welcomed our team, which included representatives of the TUI tourist agency and journalists, with an invigorating 27°C below zero (-16.6°F). Buryatia’s endless steppes get no lasting snow cover thanks to the incessant, biting winds, so we felt the freezing air in our bones. We put on all the warm clothes we had with us, including thermal underwear, scarves and fur hats. We needed all the help we could get.

In Buryatia’s Capital
The purpose of our trip was not only educational, it was also commercial. The major international tour operator TUI Group Russia and the CIS, had decided to expand its operations to this region of Siberia and begun developing package tours. Since nothing like this had been previously available on the market, TUI’s plans were of particular importance for the region. We met with Alexey Tsydenov, the official head of the Republic, who was happy to share his vision of Buryatia’s future. More than 1.5 million tourists come to Buryatia every year. Naturally, the main attraction is Lake Baikal. There is a lot of interest in it, especially among Chinese investors. However, the local government would rather work with our own Russian investors.

In October 2019 Ulan-Ude will be hosting the AIBA Women’s World Boxing Championships. Last year women boxers from Buryatia took two gold and two silver medals at the Russian Women’s Boxing Championships; and now it appears they will have to prove that they are the best in the world.

Architecturally, Buryatia’s capital looks a lot like many other Siberian cities. Its main square is the site of the world’s largest sculptural head of Vladimir Lenin, which weighs 42 tons and stands almost eight meters high! The giant head looks a little scary, but the locals have long grown accustomed to him and hold all the city’s main celebrations on the square. We soon got used to him, too, taking selfies with the great revolutionary.

Architecturally, Buryatia’s capital looks a lot like many other Siberian cities. Its main square is the site of the world’s largest sculptural head of Vladimir Lenin, which weighs 42 tons and stands almost eight meters high!
Another “monument” to Soviet rule is the spectacular Buryat National Opera and Ballet Theatre, which was established in 1939. The building, which is famous for the enormous fresco adorning its auditorium ceiling, is an example of the so-called “Stalinist Empire style” in architecture and is considered a cultural heritage site. We were given a guided tour of the theatre and even allowed to go backstage and attend a rehearsal.

A visit to the Lamas

Ivolginsky Datsan (Buddhist monastery), the centre of Buddhist spiritual practices in Russia, is located 36 km away from Ulan-Ude. Most of the temples here were built in the 1970s.

In 2002 the incorrupt body of Hambo Lama Itigilov was transferred to Ivolginsky Datsan. Hambo Lama Itigilov died in 1927, having instructed his followers to exhume his body after 75 years. When the monks performed the ritual, they discovered the Lama’s body intact, with no signs of decay. Many a scientist, including some from other countries, has tried to unlock this mystery: cells taken from the Lama’s dead body are the same as the cells of a healthy living person.

Today the Lama’s body is seated in a large armchair behind a protective glass, and at set intervals during the year, any visitor can approach him to bow and pray. An exception was made for our group, and we were allowed to visit the sacred site outside of the normal schedule. By the way, before going into the temple you are required to let go of all dark thoughts and worries in order to enter in a positive and happy mood — otherwise, you run the risk of spoiling other people’s karma.

The monastery also houses a Buddhist university (with 100 students currently studying there), a hotel that is open in the summer, a museum of Buddhist art, and a visitor center.

I was drawn to the souvenirs sold at stalls inside the monastery. There was a great selection, from slippers and belts made from camel hair in Buryatia and neighbouring Mongolia to incense and portraits of the Dalai Lama. I purchased a pair of cute “inseparable” elephant figurines. According to Buddhist tradition, the elephant is one of the most revered animals; indeed, Buddhist teaching tells us that before she gave birth to Gautama Buddha, his mother dreamt of a white elephant entering her body, and even though she was married, her vision was seen as a portent of the appearance of a divinity on earth.

POSOLSKY MONASTERY

There are three functioning Russian Orthodox monasteries in Buryatia today. The Posolsky Transfiguration Monastery, located on the shores of Lake Baikal, is quite remarkable. It was founded in 1681 on the site where eight members of the first Russian diplomatic mission to Mongolia were murdered and buried. The monastery has been under reconstruction since 2000. The Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs provides assistance to the Posolsky Transfiguration Monastery through its Board of Trustees.
Respect for tradition

The Buddhist spiritual tradition and Buryatia’s traditional culture and customs are quite fascinating. And right now Buryatia is experiencing a renewed interest in its national traditions. For example, after a baby was born, Buryats used to bury the placenta and umbilical cord, which were thought to represent another, unborn human being who must be committed to the earth to avert misfortune and sorrow. The newborn’s parents were to remember the place, as it was thought to be the birthplace of their child. This was the place where a Buryat came during hard times to pray or ask for something. Today this tradition is enjoying a revival, and local hospitals are finding ways to accommodate new parents.

Another difference between Buddhist and Christian traditions is that Buddhists do not visit cemeteries.
The Old Believers of Transbaikal, also called “Semeiskie”, meaning “of the family”, have preserved their unique culture through centuries. They got this nickname when entire families were resettled in Buryatia by special order of Catherine the Great. Today their descendants welcome tourists with traditional Russian dishes and show them their age-old way of life, their ceremonies, songs and dances. “The Cultural Space and Oral Culture of the Semeiskie” is included in UNESCO’s Intangible Cultural Heritage List.

To Baikal
On the way to Lake Baikal, Buryatia’s ultimate natural wonder and tourist attraction, we stopped to bathe in local hot springs. We really enjoyed the large pool with mineral water springs — all year round, the water temperature here reaches +37-38°C (about 98-100°F.) None of us will ever forget relaxing in hot water with the air temperature at -27°C, or trying to run up the frozen steps of the pool as our wet slippers stuck to them.

Lake Baikal belongs on everyone’s bucket list. Even in the winter, the vast, sea-like lake was an astonishing experience. It was already beginning to freeze over, but the waves were still breaking at the shore. Storms even form over the lake. Around the lake, the snow-covered trees and shrubs looked so beautiful that all the photographers reached for their cameras, and all tourists got their phones out.

We also went for a remarkable hike on a new ecological trail through the snow-covered forest of the Baikal Nature Reserve. We saw the tracks of wild animals and birds, and ancient dwellings of Transbaikal’s indigenous people. We also saw a stuffed Siberian musk deer at the Baikal Nature Reserve museum. Who’d have thought that the area was also home to a sabre-toothed deer?

The Baikal Reserve visitor centre, which was opened just a few years ago, is modern yet fits seamlessly in the surrounding landscape. The centre offers guided tours that tell visitors about this unique, endless lake and its wildlife. We were quite surprised to hear that it has recently been prohibited to fish the lake for its famed Baikal omul, the signature component of the region’s cuisine. Today, only one local business holds the permit to fish Baikal omul, so there is a good chance that the “Baikal” omul you buy in a store was caught in, say, the Yenisei or Lena Rivers. We purchased some smoked omul at a local store, and I honestly cannot tell you where it came from. We were told it was “local”. What I can tell you is that it was absolutely delicious — I don’t think I’ve ever eaten anything so good.

A Presidential dinner
Buryat cuisine is dominated by meat dishes, and the locals’ preference is for lamb. The most popular dish is called buuz. Buuz is best described as steamed meat dumplings in the shape of a yurt, with a small opening at the top of the dough to gather up the juices. It is a bit like the Georgian
Naturally, all kinds of fish from Lake Baikal are also a staple, including whitefish, grayling and omul.

Artyom Kuriksha, head chef at the Baikal Plaza Hotel’s Tenghiz restaurant, prepared a real feast for our dinner. It is worth noting that Vladimir Putin has stayed at the Baikal Plaza several times, and it was Artyom and his co-workers who created a signature dish for Mr. Putin, calling it “Fish à la President”: baked Baikal omul stuffed with porcini mushrooms and pine nuts.

As for us, we dined on Baikal whitefish with fried button and shiitake mushrooms and bell pepper jam, as well as yak tartare and venison.

Naturally, we absolutely had to ask Artyom what our President eats when he stays at the Plaza.

“Vladimir Putin likes simple food. For breakfast, he always has syrniki (traditional soft cheese pancakes), oatmeal, fresh fruit and berries. Also, we offered him pirozhki (small pastries) stuffed with bird cherries, cabbage, pine nuts and honey. He enjoys blini with caviar as well. Lunch for the President and those who accompany him is prepared by the Kremlin cooks who travel with the group. We begin preparations for his visit a week ahead, as the President’s party usually comprises seventy or so individuals. The party arrives with two trucks of food supplies.”

“Do you feel anxious when the President comes?”

“First time he came, we were really nervous, but after that it became easier. Now we know what to do. We don’t get any sleep, because everything needs to be done at a certain time. Let’s say the plane leaves at 6 am. That means that we have to start preparing all the food they take with them at 3 am. It is not like you can put it all in the fridge!” Artyom laughs...

By the way, Prime Minister Medvedev has also stayed at the Baikal Plaza twice. According to the chef, Dmitry Medvedev’s taste in food is quite similar to President Putin’s.

Folk songs, music and dance created a wonderful atmosphere for our excellent dinner, a dinner that was, indeed, worthy of a president. TLR
ROUTES Karelia

Mystical North

GRIGORY KUBATYAN, A WELL-KNOWN TRAVELER AND PHOTOJOURNALIST FROM ST. PETERSBURG, IS THE AUTHOR OF THE BOOKS LIFE ON THE ROAD AND TO INDIA BY BIKE. IN THIS “ROUTES” COLUMN, HE TALKS ABOUT THE AMAZING KARELIA.

The Republic of Karelia is Russian Finland, the land of the lakes — the large navigable ones, such as Ladoga and Onega, and hundreds of small ones, where pike, zander and burbot are hiding. The local lakes are named in the Karelian manner: Vygozero, Munozero, Segozero, Pertozero, etc. There is even a Kosmozero. In the north, Karelia backs up to the White Sea, an austere wonder of nature.

There is a Karelian saying: “The Karelian didn’t burn in the fire, but the Russian got lost in the smoke.” It’s a debatable point, but it’s also just a joke. A dark and mystical kind of humor. One thing is clear from the saying: there is no greater misfortune in Karelia than fire, because this is the land of forests and forest dwellers. And thus it is also a land of pagan legends and myths. Folk stories are still alive today that tell of sinister noiaide wizards; wandering lights; leshy — forest spirits — capable of leading travelers astray and making them go around in circles in the thick woods; and mysterious labyrinths and gigantic rocks, or seitas, near which spirits dwell. There are also many monasteries, churches and hermitages here. Holy relics and devilry, piety and atheism — everything exists side by side.

Which route to take in Karelia depends on how you are getting there. This time, I set off to drive from St. Petersburg, recording distances between the towns and villages of the Leningrad Region and Karelia with must-see places for tourists.

St. Petersburg (the beginning of the route) — Staraya Ladoga (130 km) — Tikhvin (230 km) — Verkhniye Mandrogi (430 km)

Staraya Ladoga — this town was dubbed “the capital of Northern Rus” during a high-profile media campaign in 2003. St. Petersburg was at the time celebrating its 300th anniversary, while Staraya Ladoga turned 1,250 years old. The president came here twice, and the city might have expected a big future in tourism and the status of the new “mother of Russian cities”. But that didn’t happen. Nevertheless, it is worth stopping here. Once upon a time, the Varangians lived here, or maybe ancient Germanic people, and even neolithic people, for that matter. Historians study their sites and burial mounds with unfailing interest. I would recommend seeing Staroladozhskaya Fortress, going inside Nikolsky Monastery and climbing up Malyshov Hill.
There is no greater misfortune in Karelia than fire, because this is the land of forests and forest dwellers. And thus, it is the land of pagan legends and myths.

to admire the wonderful view of the fortress and the Volkhov River.

Tikhvin — site of the Holy Dormition Convent, which is home to the Icon of Our Lady of Tikhvin, believed to work miracles. During World War II, the Germans removed the icon from the country, and it later turned up in Chicago. The icon was returned to Russia in 2004 with great fanfare and a government escort. The monastery has a remarkable bell tower. If you walk around the back of the Assumption Cathedral, you can see inscribed pagan stones built into the foundation of the building. It appears that they were objects of reverence in the distant past. Next to one of the stones, an awning was built and the icon was mounted there next to a collection box for donations. Even today, worshippers come to the miraculous icon and to the stones with their worries and hopes. I asked one lady why. “My mother did it when she was in pain and didn’t know any doctors,” she answered. “And now I come here, too.”

Verkhnie Mandrogi — this village on the Svir River is a bit touristy. Here cruise ships make a stop on their way from Ladoga to Onega. To amuse the travelers, eight log cabins were transported here from the Vologda Region. You can relax in the village, go horseback riding, do pottery, hammer a horseshoe, or visit the museum of vodka and a Russian sauna.

Verkhniye Mandrogi — Scheleyki (130 km) — Gimoretsky Pogost (136 km) — Sheltzero (166 km) — Petrozavodsk (260 km)

Scheleyki is a small village on the western shore of Lake Onega. Here stands the wooden five-domed church of Dmitry Solunsky the Myrrh-Gusher (St. Demetrios of Thessaloniki), built in 1783. To the north of the village is a gabbro-diabase quarry. This solid volcanic rock resembles basalt and is used for facing the surfaces of metro stations and for the manufacture of tombstones. The imposing gabbro-diabase cliff is several kilometers long.

Gimoretsky Pogost is the cemetery of the Gimreka village (“gim” means river), with the unique tent-roof church of the Nativity of the Mother of God built in 1659. Miraculously, the wooden church has survived since the times of Tsar Aleksey Mikhaylovich the Silent, the father of Peter the Great. The church is in a state of some neglect, but still looks striking.

In Ruskeala you can bathe in an icy lake, hike on one of the eco trails, or visit the rope-course park with a rope swing. An underground route was recently opened.

The embankment in Petrozavodsk is a popular place for meetings and walks among young people.

Sheltozero is the capital of what is known as the Veps volost (province). The province became autonomous in the 1990s and acquired its own flag, which resembles Scandinavian flags. However, since 2004, the province has officially ceased to exist. The regional ethnographic museum still exists, however, and there are several architectural artifacts. On the way from Gimreka to Sheltozero you can look for “holy Veps groves”. Or, if you are lucky, someone will show them to you.

Petrozavodsk — the capital of the Republic of Karelia. The city has a population of 270,000. There is an attractive city park overlooking Lake Onega, several museums, a philharmonic hall and a botanical garden. In the National Theater (better known as the Finnish theater), you can see the Kalevala epic performed. Near the city is a sled-dog and reindeer farm.

Among popular restaurants, I would recommend a fish restaurant, Fregat (the fish is brought from the Barents Sea), a hipster cafe, Kukhnya, and a log-cabin restaurant, Karelian Gornitsa which serves potato shanga, whitefish and roasted bear meat. You can have a good inexpensive meal in the Testo cafe (chebureki and vareniki), or in the Hermes cafeteria (salads, meatballs, borscht.)

Petrozavodsk — Kizhi (68 km by lake, 1.5 hours).

Kizhi is also a pogost, a former cemetery on an island. Nowadays it is a major tourist destination and a UNESCO world heritage center. It’s the biggest collection in the Russian North of wooden houses, chapels, mills and other wonders built with just an axe and no nails. The most amazing thing here is the Church of the Transfiguration, built in 1714 and topped with 22 cupolas. It is currently being restored. Last summer, this extraordinary church stood without cupolas, but the work is supposed to be completed by the end of 2019.

You can get to Kizhi from Petrozavodsk by fast “Comet” or “Meteor” hydrofoil ferries for about $24 one-way. If time permits and you have a car, try the route Medvezhyegorsk — Velikaya Guba — Oyatevschina, and from there it is less than $5 by a motor boat. In winter, you can get here across the ice of Lake Onega on a snowmobile or on skis.

The ticket to enter the reserve is about $8 ($9 on weekends.) Some entertaining activities include a ride in a horse-drawn buggy or attending a culinary master-class. It is forbidden to stay overnight on Kizhi. The nearest accommodations are in the village of Yersenevo: take a motor boat to Oyatevschina, then walk half a kilometer, and you can choose between Kizhanin or Kizhs-kaya Blagodat guest houses.

Petrozavodsk — Ruskeala (259 km)

Ruskeala is a photogenic mountain park with a marble quarry. Here marble for the Hermitage, and Kazan and St. Isaac’s Cathedrals was quarried. During the war, the quarry was flooded and abandoned. The film The Dawns are Quiet Here was shot near the Ruskeala waterfalls, at the site of actual battles. In modern times, another movie was filmed here — The Dark World, which received a very low rating, but was about Lapland sorcerers, lake witches, and the legends that Karelia is rich in.

You can bathe in the lake in Ruskeala (it’s cold!), hike on one of the eco trails, and visit the rope-course mountain park with a rope swing and a climbing wall. Two years ago, an underground route was opened that goes along the old shafts and mines. TLR
THE FOUNDATIONS OF THE RUSSIAN STATE AND RUSSIAN DEMOCRACY WERE LAID IN THE SOIL OF PSKOV. HERE YOU CAN SEE THE MIGHTY WALLS OF ANCIENT FORTRESSES THAT WITHSTOOD SIEGE BY THE GREATEST ARMIES OF EUROPE, OR VISIT THE GRAVE OF THE MOST REVERED RUSSIAN POET ALEXANDER PUSHKIN AT THE SVYATOGORSKY USPENSKY MONASTERY.

Ancient Pskov, which is now 1,116 years old, was once one of the biggest cities in Russia and Europe. The Pskov fortress consisted of five fortified circles, which made the city practically impenetrable. Three of them are still preserved today and attract tourists from all over the world. The stunning views of Pskov’s mighty walls and towers reflected in the waters of the Velikaya River will make an impression on every visitor to the city.

A stroll along the old town’s shady, cozy streets is a particular pleasure. Here medieval architecture is intertwined with the architecture of a 19th-century provincial centre. You will discover the secret of Pskov’s churches, which look different from different angles: sometimes vast and monumental, sometimes small and compact. Pskov is called “the Home of the Holy Trinity”, thanks to another well-known landmark: the majestic Trinity Cathedral, which stands at the centre of the city’s kremlin.

Tourists and pilgrims alike are drawn to the “God-Given” caves in the Holy Dormition cave monastery, which have a magnetic pull on tourists.

The grave of Russia’s greatest poet, Alexander Pushkin, is also in the Pskov Region, at the Svyatogorsky Uspensky Monastery. In the Mikhailovskoye Museum, you can learn about Pushkin’s life and fun-loving escapades, and discover the history of Alexander Pushkin’s great-grandfather Abram Hannibal, the “Moor of Peter the Great”.

Every year, the Pskov Region hosts a great number of interesting events, such as the festivals of military-historical reconstruction the Battle on the Ice, Isaborg, and the Iron City. At these events you can try on the armour of Russian and Teutonic knights, learn archery and forge a sword. You can also enjoy a good time and get your fill of pancakes while celebrating Maslenitsa (Shrovetide), or float high in a hot-air balloon at the annual Aeronautics Festival in Velikie Luki. Finally, you can hear performances by popular poets at the Days of Pushkin Poetry and Russian Culture in Pushkin Hills.

GETTING THERE

How to get there

By plane from Moscow — 2 hours, tickets from $14.

By train from Moscow — from 12 to 16 hours, tickets from $10; from St. Petersburg — 3.5 hours, tickets from $9.50.

Where to stay

You will find comfortable and modern accommodations in Pskov at the Old Estate Hotel. Rooms from $70. The Izborsk hotel complex, in an ancient village with a fortress-museum, also has rooms from $45.

What to eat

Pskov has a great variety of restaurants, cafes and bistros. In the Rublev bar, you can try tasty Russian dishes such as thick Chudskaya ukha, a local fish chowder made with Pskov zander. Be sure to try the delicacy of the tsars: snotek, a tender and marvelously tasty variety of smelt, which is an excellent accompaniment to beer.

What to buy

Tourists can buy books, albums and other souvenirs with the sights of Pskov and its famous suburbs. Pskov artisans offer a wide variety of ceramics and handmade goods: crockery, clay figurines, pots and vases. In addition, the region is famous for its honey, pryaniki (spiced biscuits) and textiles.
WITH RESPECT FOR TRADITION

IN THEIR REVIEWS, GUESTS OF THE DVOR PODZNOEVA HOTEL AND RESTAURANT COMPLEX DESCRIBE IT AS ONE OF THE SIGHTS OF PSKOV. THE COMPLEX INCLUDES THREE HOTEL BUILDINGS, RESTAURANTS, A CAFE, THE VINNYE PALATY (WINE CHAMBERS) BOUTIQUE, AND A SPA CENTRE.

This four-star hotel is located in the heart of the city, just steps away from Pskov’s main attractions and government offices. Here you’ll find everything you might need: clean and cozy rooms, friendly and attentive staff, a 24-hour lobby bar, two conference halls and a banquet hall. In 2019, a third hotel building was opened, with stylish suits and studios.

The restaurants are housed in 17th century stone chambers, which lend your meal a remarkably authentic atmosphere. Here you can easily imagine yourself a guest at a tsar’s lavish feast.

In the Trapeznye Palaty restaurant you can taste European and Russian dishes prepared according to local recipes — many of them ancient. The varied menu of the Pivnye Palaty restaurant will satisfy lovers of foaming beer and charcuterie.

Guests with children, meanwhile, can enjoy a selection of baked goods in Pirogovye Palaty: pirozhki (stuffed buns), turnovers, cakes and pastries. The light and airy interior of the Kofeinye Palaty bakery creates a festive mood, and their deserts, gourmet pastries and candy will leave no one indifferent.

A pleasant discovery for guests is the spa centre Bez Dna — translation: “bottomless” — which has a swimming pool, relaxing Turkish baths and a Finnish sauna. Further health benefits can be gained from a workout at the gym, skin care procedures, laser therapy, hydro massage, and several other kinds of massage.

We can’t wait to welcome you to Pskov! TLR

Most people in Russia, let alone abroad, are surprised to discover two regions with similar names on the map: Novgorod and Nizhny Novgorod. Here we wish to tell you about Veliky Novgorod and the Novgorod Region.

IN THE BIRTHPLACE OF RUSSIA

Veliky Novgorod

Upon arriving in the city, which celebrated its 1,160th anniversary this year, your first stop should be to experience the silence of the ages in St. Sophia Cathedral. This is a working cathedral built in the 11th century by Yaroslav the Wise and Princess Ingegard on the site of a wooden church that had been razed by fire. This is the most ancient church anywhere in Russia. The wrought iron Magdeburg gates and the Icon of the Mother of God are the pride of the cathedral.

We recommend that you take the five-minute walk from the Novgorod Kremlin to admire the works of the genius painter Theophanes the Greek. These are the only of his monumental frescoes surviving in the world today, and they can be seen in the Church of the Transfiguration on Ilyin Street. Any Novgorodian will tell you of dozens more such amazing places, almost 40 of which are under UNESCO protection.

And you should certainly try pickles from the village of Kholynya: their recipe is over 500 years old. From summer till spring, cucumbers are kept in oak barrels at the bottom of a river, acquiring an unmatched crunchiness and a delicate, pleasant taste.

Staraya Russa

Staraya Russa is a couple of hours away from Veliky Novgorod. On the way there, you can dip a toe into the river of time itself. The Ilmen Glint on the banks of Lake Ilmen is a monument of natural history. This is the longest exposed seabed of the Devonian period on the Russian Plain: the layers are from 420 to 360 million years old — living witnesses to the Age of Fishes.
The Novgorod Region ROUTES

In Staraya Russa, you can soak up the literary atmosphere in the Fyodor Dostoyevsky House Museum. Here, in a small provincial town, Dostoevsky wrote The Brothers Karamazov, and it’s quite possible that a little creative inspiration will come your way, too.

Staraya Russa is also known for its curative mud and mineral waters, thanks to which it achieved the status of the “Imperial Resort”.

Be sure to try the salt at Rushanin Medieval Manor, an open-air museum that recreates the medieval town’s historic atmosphere.

Borovichi and Okulovka

Borovichi is the region’s second city. Here you can immerse yourself in a world of turbulent waters, river rapids, suspension bridges and extreme sports. The Msta River rapids are a real challenge for whitewater rafters. The Ryk (Roar) and Tri Byka (Three Bulls) rapids are considered to be the most dangerous. The natural beauty of the Borovichsky District and the neighbouring Olulovsky District is such that the historian and naturalist Vitaly Bianki called the area the “Country of Marvels,” where entry is forbidden to indifferent people whose hearts are closed to the wondrous beauty of the Novgorod rivers and forests.

A museum dedicated to the life of the great military leader Alexander Suvorov is located in the village of Konchansky, Borovichsky District.

The great explorer and scientist Nicholas Miklouho-Maclay lived in the Okulovsky District, in the village of Yazukovo. His estate still stands today and is of considerable interest to travellers.

Be sure to try Novgorod’s grey schi (cabbage soup), made from the green top leaves of cabbage, which acquire grey colour in the process of fermentation. The dish is for real foodies and gastro tourists who are open to new experiences.

Khvoiyna

Traveling into the depths of the Novgorod Region, you should visit the town of Khvoiyna. In the forest near the town, there are karst lakes which mysteriously drain into the earth. The most beautiful lake in the Karst Lake Reserve is Gorodno Lake. In addition, there are five more lakes and one chain of lakes.

Be sure to try medovukha — an alcoholic drink made from northern, amber honey. TLR

A LEGENDARY City

Located on the Black Sea in the South-West of Crimea, the city of Sevastopol is a cultural, historical, scientific and recreational centre, and the home port of Russia's Black Sea Fleet. Its rich history and amazing natural surroundings make Sevastopol an attractive destination for travellers.

Grafskaya Pier, Sevastopol. The pier is a historical and architectural landmark named after the Serbian Count Marko Vojnovich, who was a founder and admiral of the Black Sea Fleet.
Sevastopol’s history dates back several thousand years, and visiting the city allows you to travel back through the centuries to explore different epochs and become acquainted with the intertwining of its cultures, civilizations and ethnic groups. Sevastopol’s unique strategic and geographic location has helped to determine its fate and identity, playing a significant role in the formation of the city.

Worthy of Honour
Founded in 1783 on the order of Empress Catherine II, the name “Sevastopol” can be translated from Greek as “honourable”. Catherine turned the city into Russia’s principle naval base, and for 236 years Sevastopol has lived up to its proud name for its unparalleled courage and military glory.

Many important events, well-known legends and traditions are linked to the city. It is famous for major tourist attractions such as the Tauric Chersonesus Historical and Archaeological Museum-Reserve, the Museum of Military History of Fortifications, the Sevastopol Military-Historical Museum-Reserve and Great Sevastopol Trail, as well as its beaches, theatres and sea cruises.

Included on the UNESCO World Heritage List in 2013, the Tauric Chersonesus Historical and Archaeological Museum-Reserve dates back 2,000 years and is one of the most popular tourist attractions, where the historic chronicles of the region emphasize the period of early Orthodox Christianity. It was here that St. Vladimir, or Prince Vladimir the Great, was baptized (at Chersonesos, also known as Korsun), thus beginning the process of Christianization of Old Rus’.

The Sevastopol Military-Historical Museum-Reserve combines the story of the exploits of Russian soldiers during the Crimean war of 1853-1856 and World War II, and consists of the Memorial Complex of the Monuments of the Defence of the City 1854-1855, the “Historical Boulevard”, the Defence of Sevastopol 1854-1855 Panorama, the Memorial Monuments of the Defence of the City 1854-1855, “Malakhov Kurgan” 1941-1944, the Memorial complex “Sapun-Gora”, the “Sturm Sapun Mountain May 7, 1944” Diorama, the Cathedral of St. Vladimir, where many outstanding military figures are included on the UNESCO World Heritage List in 2013, the Tauric Chersonesus Historical and Archaeological Museum-Reserve dates back 2,000 years and is one of the most popular tourist attractions.

The Museum of Military History of Fortifications and Museum “Coastal Battery 35” are of particular interest for tourists. The Museum of Military History of Fortifications is an underground, rock-hewn submarine repair and maintenance base, which was once a top-secret installation and is now one of the city’s top tourist attractions. The Museum “Coastal Battery 35” is a museum complex dedicated to the heroic feats of the city’s defenders in 1941-1942, the site of bloody battles where soldiers died fighting the Nazi invaders.

Their courage won them unfading worldwide fame. “Gentlemen! If only I could walk, I would go to the holy places of Russia — Leningrad, Stalingrad, and Sevastopol, get down on my knees and kiss the holy land,” said American President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

After the Crimean War, settlements named after Sevastopol (sometimes called Sebastopol) appeared in Australia, the United Kingdom, California and Mississippi, and even on the island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean. The museum Sebastopol House was built in Texas in →

A Wealth of Culture and Nature
The city boasts many interesting places to visit, including museums, churches, and memorials: there are some 2,175 sites in all, of which 1,358 have the status of cultural heritage sites, with 126 under federal protection. There are British, French, German, Italian, and Turkish monuments and memorials, which have been visited by public figures such as Winston Churchill, Franklin Roosevelt, Prince Charles, Silvio Berlusconi and

With its mild coastal climate, Sevastopol’s tourist season lasts 130 sunny days. The sea heats up to about 23-24 °C in July, and the amazing mountain views and extraordinary seascapes attract Russian and foreign travellers for holidays and vacations. The city has more than 185 hotels and guesthouses, numerous cafes and restaurants, and 36 city beaches, and its citizens are polite and hospitable to all, doing their best for guests.

The Great Sevastopol Trail

The Great Sevastopol Trail (GST) is a safe and easily accessible trail for adventure travellers, its 117-kilometer path circling the peninsula from Balaklava to Lyubimovka, from the southern to the western shores of the Black Sea through the Crimean Mountains. The main route consists of eight main sites, with the paths between them from four to ten hours each to walk.

GST is equipped with a tourist navigation system and a Via ferrata (translated from Italian, it means “iron path”). This is a protected climbing route fitted with steel cable and bracket supports that passes through some of the most beautiful landmarks of Southern Crimea. The Via ferrata requires no specialist climbing skills, and travellers are provided with maps and equipment, together with free use of a special website and mobile app.

Sea Kayaking

Sevastopol is a sea port, and offers a wide range of water activities including diving, yachting and kayaking, allowing its world of underwater harbours, ship wrecks and underwater caves to be explored. You can hire a yacht to sail along the South Crimean shore, while with a kayak you can explore the area’s hidden beaches and rock tunnels, and relax far away from civilization.

In Vino Veritas

Enogastronomy is a new travel philosophy that seeks out undiscovered tastes and authentic traditions, which in Sevastopol means fresh seafood and local wines, many made by small producers. On the same latitude as Burgundy, Bordeaux and Piedmont, the area’s vineyards stretch out over the Sevastopol area down picturesque roads and over extraordinary landscapes.

With their fine aroma, Sevastopol’s wines are unique and the city boasts five large wineries, which offer educational tours, during which you can discover their wine-making secrets, and wine tastings. Join the festivities!

Sevastopol hosts many special events, including international festivals and sports competitions. These include Navy Day, celebrated on the last Sunday of July, one of the city’s favourite occasions. Other large-scale events include the Opera in Chersonesus Festival (August 14-17, 2019), the Crimea Historical Military Festival (September 6-16), Bike Show (August 10), Sevastopol Sail Week (September 15-22), the international extreme sports festival X-FEST (August 24-25), the Great Sevastopol Trail Festival (October 14-20), and the Big Tourist Jamboree in the well-equipped Toporova Dacha.

A boat excursion along Sevastopol’s beautiful coast will be a memory to treasure. Professional athletes compete in sailing races every autumn.
Balaklava, outside Sevastopol, is a popular tourist destination. Visitors can enjoy views of Balaklava Bay and its adjacent beaches, which can be reached by boat, and Cape Aya with its caves.

CAN YOU COMBINE DOWNHILL SKIING AND CASINO GAMING? SOCHI HAS BEEN OFFERING JUST SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY FOR THE LAST TWO YEARS, AND IT HAS BECOME VERY POPULAR.

ANTON SEMENOV, EDITOR OF TOURISM AND LEISURE IN RUSSIA, TRIED HIS LUCK ON THE SLOPES AND AT THE TABLES.

Cards, mountains, and casino
The company Domain, which operates Sochi’s gaming zone, invited journalists and editors to take part in a poker tournament. The casino regularly hosts such meetings of amateur gamblers, and with the Krasnaya Polyana gaming zone 540 meters above sea level, it would be a crime not to take advantage of the opportunity to ski while at the resort.

At 960 meters
The scribes were accommodated at the 4-star Gorki Panorama Hotel, 960 meters above sea level. The hotel is situated in the ultramodern ski resort Gorki Gorod, which was created for the 2014 Winter Olympics. Not far from the hotel — one of ten at the resort, of various levels of comfort — is the main cable lift, as well as ski lifts, numerous ski and snowboard rental outlets, and a selection of restaurants and cafes. The cost of staying at 3-4-star hotels in January is from $90 to $125, including breakfast. On weekends, the price may be higher due to increased demand. The price at the Gorki Panorama hotel includes visits to a spa with pool and sauna.

Down below, at 540 meters above sea level, there are additional hotels, as well as railway stations, bus stops, apartments, shopping centers, restaurants, cafes, and casinos.

A one-day ski-pass (from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.) is $35 for adults and $23 for children. The more days you purchase, the lower the price. An evening ski pass, from 6 to 11 p.m., costs $23. Equipment rental (skis, boots, poles) was about $25 for 24 hours. On the flight back, however, more than 30 bags with skiing items were unloaded from the plane — it seems people prefer to travel with their own equipment.

There are many ski trails for beginners and professionals alike. It was six degrees Celsius in the mountains almost every day, but the capricious weather surprised us with a downpour before our departure. It rained almost all day long. In the mountains, at 2,200 meters, it came down as a blizzard of snow, reducing visibility to zero, and nobody got through it without a few spills. But neither bad weather nor the total lack of visibility that day could deter skiers and snowboarders.

Gorki Gorod’s restaurants offered a European menu and Caucasian cuisine at Moscow prices. On average, lunch cost $15-25 per person. For instance, at the popular Caucasian cuisine restaurant Pkhali and Khinkali, located right by the ski lift, a portion of khinkali mutton dumplings (five pieces) cost about $7, kharcho was $7, pork shashlik — $8, khash (offal soup) — $9, veal with chestnuts — $12, and Adjaruli khachapuri (baked cheese bread) — $7.

Just as good as Las Vegas
The main event — the reason we’d been invited — began with an excursion to the Boomerang

Casino which had just opened in January 2019 at the neighboring Rosa Khutor resort. The space was not very large, but was already packed with visitors. Journalists had fun posing for photos amid the sleek hi-tech surroundings, although we were strictly forbidden from photographing players and staff.

I should mention that you have to have your passport with you on your first visit to the casino. You will be issued with an ID card for the gaming zone, which allows you to enter all gaming establishments and make transactions. All this ensures order, transparency and safety at the casino. This is probably the main achievement of the new gaming zones, which opened in Russia in 2009 after the total ban on gambling was partly lifted.

The stylish Boomerang Hotel is housed in a freestanding building on the bank of the River Mzymta. The company’s owners leased a seven-story building and plan to open a restaurant, a sports bar, a club and a hotel in addition to the casino. Already, $11 million has been invested in equipping the casino, while the whole project will cost an estimated $15.5 million. Mark Stankevich, who is from Poland, is the casino’s general manager. He has lived in Russia for a long time and speaks Russian quite well.

From there we headed to Casino Sochi, which is already two years old. Located in the building where the Media Center was housed during the Olympics, the casino is astonishingly grand and luxurious. Bright lights worthy of the Las Vegas Strip attract gamblers and tourists. The interior is also beyond all praise: luxurious furnishings, VIP rooms and halls, a great number of tables, slot machines ... They say that $63 million went into the casino. How soon will the investment pay off? Considering that the company’s tax payments amounted to $23.4 million in two years, I think the casino is doing fine.

All in all, 1,400 people work in the Krasnaya Polyana gaming zone, which includes Casino Sochi, Boomerang and Bonus, a slot-machine parlor. Visitors come from all over the country, from Kaliningrad to Vladivostok.

The journalists were able to see the popularity of Casino Sochi for themselves. On a Saturday evening, there was barely room to move. For instance, you had to wait for a long time for a free seat at the Russian poker table.

According to statistics, 84 percent of guests are Russian nationals. The rest of the guests are foreigners, and there were many visitors from abroad that evening, playing roulette, poker and the slot machines. In two years, the gaming zone has been visited by 850,000 people from 146 countries, and the percentage of foreign guests keeps growing.

"In a short time in Sochi a new level of tourism has been created — gaming tourism. People from all over the world come here, including world-famous poker players. Now, after the Winter Olympics, thanks to the new infrastructure, this is an entertainment center with all imaginable kinds of service, from skiing to spas to chic restaurants and casinos. During the holidays, the hotels are at 100 percent occupancy," says Dmitry Afinogenov, director of development for the Krasnaya Polyana Gaming Zone. "More than 120 large companies have held corporate events here in the last two years, and our restaurant Brunello is one of the best in Sochi."

A world poker capital
Casino Sochi regularly holds world poker tournaments. It has already hosted 18 major tournament series, and the record prize pool at a tournament was almost $11 million! According to the organizers, it took just two years to do the amount of work that takes other countries decades to execute.

“We were all waiting for a casino to open in Sochi because we realized that it would be the best casino in Russia and the CIS,” said Artur Voskanyan, manager of the poker project. “And that’s exactly how it has turned out. In two years, Sochi has become recognized as a global brand among poker enthusiasts, including those from Macao, Monaco and Las Vegas. We are currently hosting the World Poker Tour with a prize purse of $2.7 million. We have 52 tables — we began with just 10, but now we could add even more. Twelve major tournaments are planned for this year."

Poker has long since stepped out of the shadows, and now everybody is playing, men and women alike. For the latter, incidentally, there is a separate tournament. “The entry fee starts from $200. Poker tournaments are like summer camps for adults. Everyone knows each other, the families spend time together and become friends. Poker is a hobby that can make you money,” said Voskanyan.

World Poker Tour President Adam Pliska traveled to Sochi from the U.S. for the tournament. Adam Pliska, who could easily be mistaken for the ex-President of the United States, began his presentation by stating that he is not Barak Obama, and praised the Russians for their outstanding organization of the tournament. His team shot several excellent videoclips about the ski resort and casinos in Sochi, which they immediately posted on the Internet.

The only complaint from the representatives of the gaming zone, including foreign guests, was the difficulty in obtaining Russian visas for foreigners. They generally felt that simplifying the visa process and the possibility of getting a long-term visa would vastly increase the number of foreign tourists.

Cards on the table
If you have never played poker, it’s worth a try. The relatively simple rules allow beginners to test their luck (and skill) at the table. You are guaranteed a rush of adrenalin and emotion.

More than 40 journalists from different cities were first taught the rules of Texas Hold ‘Em. Then the cards were dealt, chips were handed out — and the game began. After three rounds of 30 minutes, each with increased stakes, only the luckiest were left standing.

The winners were announced at the gala reception in the casino restaurant, Brunello. Internationally renowned chef Ilya Zakharov was on hand as guests enjoyed a gourmet dinner.

After the dinner, many of the journalists tried their luck at the roulette wheel behind the poker tables and slot machines. Someone even managed to win a jackpot on the slots.

The unforgettable evening ended with a concert by the popular Russian singer Trofim, whom many of the guests at the Gorky Gorod resort had come to listen to. “This is quite the cultural center,” I thought, and went to place my bet on red. TLR
The Delicious Land of the Nightingale

THIS IS OUR "LAND OF THE NIGHTINGALE: CULINARY TOUR", PRESENTED TO YOU BY THE KURSK REGIONAL TOURISM AND INFORMATION CENTRE.

Day 1
The first stop on our culinary tour is the village of Dronyayevo in the Kurchatov District, where you can try the authentic potato drunka. Drunka is a zapékanka, a baked dish made from mashed potatoes, fresh eggs from free-range hens, milk, and butter. It is garnished with sour cream. This recipe has been handed down from one generation to the next, and we are confident that you will enjoy this delicious traditional fare.

After this hearty lunch, tourists are invited to the town of Kurchatov (named after Igor Kurchatov, a Soviet nuclear physicist and director of the Soviet atomic bomb project), where they can visit the Kursk Nuclear Power Plant Information Centre. The next stop is the town's central square, where you can see several important landmarks, such as the monument to Igor Kurchatov, the "Black Tulip" — a memorial to the Soviet soldiers who were killed in Afghanistan (1979–1989) — and the monument commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Battle of Kursk. Visitors can also enjoy a walk along the embankment of the cooling pond for the Kursk Nuclear Power Plant. In the 40 years that the power plant has been operating, this area has become a spontaneous nature reserve, providing a habitat for a unique species of reed and rare birds.

Day 2
On the second day of their trip tourists will be visiting the Ponyri District, an area known for its traditional way of making garbuznya. The story of this dish begins in the 19th century, when the region was populated by the Sayans,
The first stop on our culinary tour is the village of Dronyayevo in the Kurchatov District, where you can try authentic potato drunka.

Garbuznya, a pumpkin porridge served with millet flatbread, was prepared from simple ingredients: pumpkin, millet, milk, salt, sugar, and butter. Many local residents grew pumpkins on their land, as the fruit stored well through the winter, and pumpkin dishes were tasty and nutritious. There is much more to Ponyri and the surrounding area for tourists than the delicious dish of garbuznya. It was here in July 1943 that one of the major confrontations of the Second World War, the Battle of Kursk, began. Along with the Battle of Stalingrad, it is considered the turning point of the War. Visitors will have a chance to see the Kursk Bulge Memorial complex, the Angel of Peace Column, and the Teplovsky Heights Monument. A guided tour of the Ponyri Memorial Museum of the Battle of Kursk is provided. Tourists can also visit one of the most revered sites of the Russian Orthodox Church, the ancient monastery known as the Korennaya Pustyn — the “root hermitage”.

Day 3
The next stop in our culinary journey is the country estate of the renowned Russian poet Afanasy Fet in the Craft fair in Dronyayevo. The village was once home to farmers and potters.

Corn cakes are very popular in the Kursk Region.
In May, a celebration of music and poetry known as “Nightingale Night” is held at the country estate of the renowned Russian poet Afanasy Fet.

Every May the estate hosts a celebration of music and poetry known as “Nightingale Night”. Traditionally, the first Sunday of July is the date of the yearly literary gathering, which is attended by writers, poets, and literature lovers from all over Russia.

Day 4

The final day of our culinary tour will take you to Maryino, the former estate of the Princes Baryatinsky, where you can taste the same dishes as the owners once offered to their guests.

This three-story noble mansion, built in the 19th century, is located in the centre of the estate and is surrounded by parkland. It is flanked by household buildings that are connected to the mansion through arched gateways. Designed by the local Kursk architect Karl Hofmann, the mansion was initially called the Izbitsky House, since it was built on the River Izbitsa. Later, to honor Ivan Baryatinsky’s beloved wife Maria, the mansion was re-named Maryino.

It is surrounded by a beautiful park with majestic trees. The Maryinsky Pond, with a number of islands, is also part of the estate, on one of which stands a rotunda with sixteen columns and a spherical dome.
Originally, a white marble statue representing the birth of Venus adorned the centre of the rotunda. The statue was the work of the Italian sculptor Fenelli. Today a copy stands in its place.

The oval island in the middle of the pond is the site of a brick Protestant chapel built for Princess Maria. Craftsmen from St. Petersburg also built a “fleet” of boats to take people to the island. The original bridges crossing the park’s canals have also been preserved.

Once upon a time, noble ladies escaped the scorching sun under cozy pergolas, which survive to this day.

Prince Baryatinsky, having traveled all over Europe, was full of progressive ideas, which he put to use on his estate. Everything served at the table was grown in the estate’s fertile soil.

We all have a favourite dish, and Prince Baryatinsky was no exception: he loved roast rack of lamb. A young ewe was selected for this dish, and the meat was soaked in marinade for several hours. Even today the recipe will not be revealed to you: just know that the marinade includes spices and herbs borrowed from French, English and Italian cuisines.

You can also try dishes from the regional menu in various Kursk restaurants.

GETTING THERE

How to get there
You can get here from Moscow or St. Petersburg by plane, train or bus. The train ticket from Moscow to Kursk will cost you approximately $11, and $40 from St. Petersburg.

Where to stay
The regional business centre offers four-star hotels like the Element, Aurora, and Prestige Hotels. Three-star hotels such as the Aqua marine and White Acacia are also available. Average room rate: $40+.

What to eat
We recommend the following Kursk restaurants offering European and local dishes: Utka (Duck), Mezzanine, Biblioteka (Library), Kikan, and Belaya Akatsiya (White Acacia). Average check: $13 per person.

What to buy
Kozhlya clay toys, Sudzha ceramics, Samoryadovo rushnks (ritual embroidered textiles), bast shoes, Kursk khokhloma (decorative painted wood), Korennyy gingerbread, Kursk Antonovka apples, and the “Kursk Bird” candy.

DAY TWO

10:00 AM. Leave for Leo Tolstoy Village. The village is known throughout the world as the place where, in 1910, the great Russian writer Leo Tolstoy spent the last seven days of his life.

12:00 PM. A tour of the Leo Tolstoy Cultural and Educational Center and the literary and memorial museum dedicated to the writer. The room where the great novelist’s heart stopped beating is preserved as it was that day.

01:00 PM. A tour of the museum and its exhibits, including clocks and a steam train.

02:00 PM. Lunch in Khutorok restaurant.

03:00 PM. Visit to the Nikolai Sysoev Picture Gallery. Works by the Russian realist painters Nikolay Sysoev and his wife Nina Skorubskaya are displayed at the gallery. The gallery’s collection also includes works by other well-known Russian painters of the second half of the 20th century.

03:30 PM. Visit to the Center for Cultural Development, taking part in a master class in belt-weaving or in Rangoli — the art of creating colorful ornaments out of flowers, rice and rice flour.

04:30 PM. A grand tea party will conclude the literary tour! The travelers will be treated to rare teas with a wide variety of sweets — just the way Leo Tolstoy liked to take his tea! The great writer had a weakness for desserts, and was unfailingly served berry jam and other delicious treats with his evening tea.

05:00 PM. Leave for Lipetsk railway station.

BLESSED BRYANSK REGION

BRYANSK REGION (BRYANSHINA) IS THE LAND OF ALEXANDER PERESVET, A RUSSIAN WARRIOR MONK WHOSE SINGLE COMBAT WITH TATAR WARRIOR CHELUBEY OPENED THE BATTLE OF KULIKOVO. IT IS ALSO THE HOMELAND OF RUSSIAN POETS FYODOR TYUTCHEV AND ALEXEY TOLSTOY. THE INDOMITABLE PARTISANS OF THE BRYANSK REGION, MEANWHILE, WON A PERMANENT PLACE OF HONOUR IN RUSSIAN MILITARY HISTORY WITH THEIR FEATS IN THE SECOND WORLD WAR.

Here you can follow the partisans’ forest paths and immerse yourself in the history of World War II while visiting such historical landmarks as the Partisans’ Field, Khatsun, the Camp of the Vinogradov Partisan Brigade at Krugloye Lake, and Seshinsky Museum of the International Resistance Movement. Visitors to these memorial sites will be able to see a staged partisan skirmish, try a portion of kasha (meaty porridge) cooked over the campfire, receive a shelkovka (a letter hand-written on a piece of cloth) as a gift, and visit an exhibition of military equipment.

Particular attention is paid in the Bryansk Region to the restoration of Orthodox landmarks. Visiting Svensky Monastery, founded by Roman Mikhailovich, Prince of Bryansk, in 1288, you will learn the story of the miraculous recovery of the prince’s sight after he prayed before the Pechersk Icon of the Theotokos, originally brought from Kyiv. Tsar Peter the Great used to sit here in the shadow of a huge oak tree that still stands on the monastery hill.

DIRECTIONS

Bryansk Region

The beauty of Bryansk Region features in the verse and prose of many local sons who have left their mark on international culture. The village of Ovstug in Zhukovsky District is home to the ancestral estate of the Tyutchev family, a star in the constellation of Russian stately homes of the 18th and 19th centuries. Today, it houses a museum honouring the great Russian philosopher, poet, and writer Fyodor Tyutchev. Ovstug is one of the most beautiful spots in Bryansk Region, charms its many visitors with the outstanding beauty of its landscapes. In a pavilion on an island in the middle of the lake, you can spend a few unforgettable moments watching the swans swim around you. On the first Saturday in June every year, Ovstug hosts an All-Russian Poetry Festival.

Another ancestral estate — that of the poet, playwright, and novelist Alexey Tolstoy — is located in the village of Krasny Rog in Pocherpsky District. In the renovated main house, built by Tolstoy’s ancestor Count Razumovsky, you can see the preserved personal effects of the writer. Alexey Tolstoy and his wife and muse Sofia are buried at the old wooden Assumption Church.

Today in Bryansk Region, great efforts are committed to the preservation of folk art and crafts, and to the promotion of the famous local brands, Dyatkovsky Crystal and Karachayevo Toys. The Dyatkovsky Crystal Museum displays the best examples of crystal glassware dating back three hundred years, and you can also tour the Church of the Burning Bush, featuring the world’s only crystal iconostasis and other unique crystal church decorations. There is also a shop where you can buy handmade crystal glassware.

Getting There

How to get there
From Moscow to Bryansk there is a high-speed train that runs three times a day. Travel time 4 hours. You can also fly to Bryansk from St. Petersburg and from Moscow.

Where to stay
Bryansk offers a wide selection of hotels for all tastes and budgets. The most popular include Tsentralnaya, Bryansk, Desna, Gostinny Dom, Vladimir Plaza, and Megapolis.

What to eat
The area boasts numerous venues offering unique cuisine. The best cafes and restaurants include Razdolye, Chester, Myaso Yest, Art Hall, Green City, Pontile (Italian cuisine), and Augustin, a beer restaurant.

What to buy
Local confectionery made by the craftsmen of Bryankof (Bryansk Confectionery Factory) and the famous Starodubsky Cheese made by Umalat factory in Sevsk are guaranteed to delight. Copies of the locally venerated icons of the Svensk Mother of God, Ss. Oleg and Polikarp of Bryansk, and Alexander Peresvet make for a particularly special gift.
The Republic of Bashkortostan is located in the Southern Urals and the Cis-Ural region. It is a land of thick forests and endless steppes, steep hills and deep lakes, where people harvest honey and drink kumis — mare’s milk. Some 160 ethnic groups live in the Republic: that’s why they say that the shape of Bashkiria looks like the palm of a hand — open to all its peoples in handshake.

The Bashkirs are a Turkic people; they are the Republic’s native people, and about 1.2 million Bashkirs live there. In the villages and small towns, they still keep cattle and horses, and they engage in traditional crafts such as carpet weaving and making shawls. Women’s jewelry, made with coral beads and coins, has been popular since ancient times.
The Bashkirs say that they live to dance. Nazgul Buskunova from the village of Sidorovka has recently finished 11th grade and plans to go on to medical school in Ufa. Since the age of seven, she has been a folk dancer in the “Yashma” dance group, taking part in various competitions.
The capital of the Republic, Ufa, is located on the Belaya River, and is home to more than one million people. The statue of Bashkiria’s national hero, Salavat Yulaev, stands on the city’s central square: ten meters high, it is a symbol of Ufa and a national treasure that is depicted on the coat of arms of the Republic.
The horses of Bashkortostan are another symbol of the republic; they are independent and graze in herds, without herdsmen. They find their own food even in winter, digging up grass and roots from under the snow. In the Abzelilovsky District alone, there are 26,000 horses. Kumis and horsemeat are traditional dishes on Bashkir tables.
Kuresh is a form of traditional Turkic wrestling. It involves throwing towels around the opponent’s waist and is an important element for Bashkirs of the traditional celebration of Sabantuy. In photo: Kuresh wrestling champion Ainur Syrtaev during his victorious Sabantuy fight.
Just one visit to Bashkiria, with its velvet mountains, green plains, deep lakes full of crystalline water, yellow-red sunsets, quiet herds of cows and frisky horses strolling the steppes and the Republic’s country roads, and you will fall in love with this land forever.
ART WITHOUT BORDERS

NOVOSIBIRSK REGION IS THE BUSINESS AND CULTURAL CENTRE OF SIBERIA. THERE’S ALWAYS SOMETHING TO DO, FOR LOCALS AND VISITORS ALIKE, WITH A HUGE NUMBER OF FESTIVALS AND CELEBRATIONS TO OCCUPY AND ENTERTAIN YOU.

TEXT LYUBOV ROMANOVA

Over the years, music and dance festivals, air shows and historical re-enactments have transformed this Siberian region into a great place to relax and have fun.

Art Festival

Every spring, the Trans-Siberian Art Festival, a major cultural event, delights both Novosibirsk residents and visitors to the city. This celebration of music showcases new stars, hosts international premieres, and offers many other pleasant surprises, with new works by contemporary composers performed here for the first time every year.

Vadim Repin, a world-renowned classical violinist and a native of Novosibirsk, serves as the festival’s artistic director, and the backbone of the festival is always the Novosibirsk Philharmonic Orchestra.

This spring some of the world’s most famous musicians came to perform in Novosibirsk: the conductors Tugan Sokhiev, Charles Dutoit (Switzerland), and Yan Pascal Tortelier (France); the pianists Konstantin Lifschitz (Switzerland), Denis Kozhukhin, Sergei Tarasov, and Claudia Yang (Malaysia & China); the violinists Daniel Lozakovich (Sweden), Roman Simovich
Novosibirsk Region EVENTS

For the first time in the history of the festival, an opera performance was also included in the programme. Conducted by Dmitry Kryukov (Moscow), the Trans-Siberian Festival Orchestra, with the participation of music academy students, performed Wagner’s “Tannhäuser”. To celebrate the Year of Theatre, the festival also included performances by the Milanese puppet theatre Carlo Colla & Figli. The audience was particularly interested by “Devil, Soldier, and Violin”, a multimedia show based on “A Soldier’s Story” and other works by Igor Stravinsky, which was conducted by Dmitry Sitkovetsky (USA).

Siberian Fire

The Siberian Fire International Festival of Military History is one of the most ambitious and impressive events of the summer. It takes place every June in the village of Bolshoy Oyosh in Kolyvan District.

This summer it was attended by more than five hundred historical re-enactment enthusiasts from Russia, France, Kazakhstan, Belarus, and the Czech Republic, and over 50,000 spectators came to enjoy the shows. Dozens of historical re-enactment campsites and interactive spaces were set up in the festival grounds. Visitors were given the opportunity to learn about nine periods in world and Russian history presented in the re-enacted battle scenes.

The festival began with a picturesque procession. An exhibition of military and civilian equipment from different periods in history was also set up on the festival grounds, and everyone was welcome to pose for photos. Then, before the eyes of the public, a World War I battle scene was re-enacted, followed by a performance that illustrated the contribution of Siberian soldiers to the liberation of Sevastopol from German forces in 1944. Perhaps the most impressive sight was offered by a staged battle scene, complete with heavy military equipment, explosions and gunfire, commemorating the 30th anniversary of the withdrawal of Soviet troops from Afghanistan.

Separate venues were open for children and teenagers: “Knightly Tournament for Children”, “Landsknecht Recruiting”, “Obstacle Course”, and “Children’s Historical Firing Range”. Festival events also included military sports competitions between military-patriotic clubs of the region.

According to tradition, the festival ended with a gala folk concert and colourful fireworks.

The Siberian Fire International Festival of Military History is one of the most ambitious and impressive events of the summer. It takes place in the village of Bolshoy Oyosh.

Air Show
The last weekend of July, the aerodrome in Mochishche (12 km away from Novosibirsk) hosts a magnificent air show. More than 450 dedicated professional aviators from various regions of the Russian Federation participate in this event. Among them, there are champions of Russia, Europe and the world, and more than seventy experienced parachutists.

Approximately one hundred aircraft take part in the show. The sounds of engines and the applause of spectators accompany feats performed by Russian Armed Forces airplane and helicopter pilots, as well as solo and group acts by civilian pilots. Watching vintage aircraft fly is especially captivating. The athletes dazzle spectators with breathtaking parachute jumps and canopy relative work. Powered paragliders, motorized delta-planes, and kites are also on display. The Russian Falcons, the Russian Air Force’s aerobatics performance team, demonstrate their spectacular command of the Sukhoi fighter jets in solo and group performances.

Throughout the show visitors can admire and even touch military and civil aircraft, World War II era automobiles, other vintage cars, and bikes from motorcycle clubs. Anyone looking for a snack heads to the “field kitchen”, which offers a delicious hot dish of buckwheat groats with meat. Children enjoy fairground rides and other entertainment.

Electronic Shore
“Electronic Shore”, the much anticipated beach festival, is yet another exciting event that takes place in August. It brings together everyone who enjoys dancing, sport, delicious food, great music and good company. During the festival the beach is transformed into a massive musical, sport and entertainment venue. The organizers claim to “transport” you to Hawaii, and everything around really is Hawaiian: tanned girls in bathing suits, muscular surfers, traditional flower garlands, straw villages, surfer bikes and cars, iced cocktails, totems and fancy costumes. Just say “Aloha!”

The festival’s programme includes water polo, windsurfing, a dance-off and fancy dress swimming competition, a float fight, salsa master classes, performances by famous musicians, and entertainment for children. To make sure nobody goes hungry, the food court and market stay open all day.

All the best elements from previous festivals will be brought back this year, like the legendary Dance Battle — more than ten hours of performances by top dancers representing the most popular trends, including aerial silk dancing.

When you come to this unforgettable event, do not miss a chance to take a run through the pool of non-Newtonian fluid — this has been one of the most popular attractions at previous festivals!

DINNER IS SERVED!

ALMOST 200 ETHNICITIES LIVE IN RUSSIA, AND THE NUMBER OF ETHNIC DISHES IS MANY TIMES GREATER. SOME ARE WELL-KNOWN, OTHERS MUCH LESS SO. TODAY WE WILL TELL YOU ABOUT SOME OF THESE AUTHENTIC ETHNIC DISHES AND WHERE YOU CAN TRY THEM.

TEXT: FYODOR DMITRIEV

RUSSIAN OKROSHKA
The first recipes for okroshka are over a thousand years old. The main ingredient is kvass, which is mentioned in historical sources dating to 989. Originally, only onion and black radish were used to make okroshka. The sliced vegetables were doused in kvass and sour cream was added. Okroshka had a resurgence thanks to Volga barge haulers, who carried huge loaded barges. For their work, they were paid in kvass and vobla (fish jerky). The fish was dry and very salty, so the barge haulers began soaking it in kvass and adding vegetables to it.

The history of okroshka differs from location to location. The main ingredients are fish, meat, rutabaga, turnip, eggs and green vegetables. Sauerkraut or pickle brine, whey or kefir can all be used as broth. But most commonly the dish is doused in kvass, because of its refreshing and thirst-quenching qualities. The one essential ingredient is sour cream.

DAGESTANI KHINKALI
Khinkali is the calling card of Dagestani cuisine. It is not just one dish, but a whole collection of dishes. There are four important components in khinkali. The first one is boiled meat (mainly mutton, but beef, cured sausage or chicken may be used as well). The second component is a dough wrap of various shapes and sizes, as well as broth and sauce, always with garlic. People cook khinkali in all the regions of Dagestan, but there are some variations. For instance, khinkali are prepared by the Kumyk and Lak peoples using unfermented dough, while Avars use a dough made with sour milk. Khinkali look like wontons and may be served either separately or with mutton broth.

MORDOVIAN SNACK

Mordovia’s traditional dishes are noted for their high nutritional value. That’s why they are not just tasty, but filling. A popular snack made with beets is called valdo yakstere viy: the name is translated as “scarlet power.” The recipe is simple. Boiled or fresh beets are cut into small pieces, mixed with traditional goat milk and sprinkled with vegetable oil. To these ingredients it is possible to add either sugar or salt.

BURYAT BUUZ

Buu is a popular Buryat treat. They are sometimes confused with the more widespread manty dumplings. According to the Buryat recipe, trimmed mutton is minced in a wooden tub. Then the belly fat is finely chopped with onion and added to the ground meat. Salt, pepper, and a pressed clove of garlic are added to taste. To bind the juice from the mince, a tablespoon of sifted wheat flour is sprinkled over the mixture. The dough is made with eggs, rolled out thinly and cut into circles. A small piece of ground meat is placed in the center of the circle, and the edges are carefully folded, while rotating the buuz in the palm of the hand, leaving a small opening on top. The result should look like a beautiful meat “rose”. The buuz are steamed for half an hour, depending on their size and the thickness of the dough.

Urgy, 40 Tobolskaya Street, Ulan Ude.

KARELIAN FISH CHOWDER

The most popular Karelian dish is the fish chowder called Kalaruokka. There are numerous versions of the recipe, but the most common one uses whitefish. In addition, locals sometimes make the soup with milk or with fermented fish. The secret of cooking Karelian fish chowder lies in the following: five minutes before readiness, the fish broth is poured through a thick layer of birch coals. Unlike the Russian equivalent (which is tastiest when it is most transparent), Kalaruokka is slightly murky. Not only eggs and fish are added, but also Iceland moss, rye flour, and birch buds.

UDMURT PEREPECHI
Udmurtia is famous for its pelmeni (dumplings) and even the etymology of the word “pelmen” has Udmurt roots, according to one theory. But more popular among Udmurts themselves are perepechi: open-faced cheese pastries, prepared using unleavened dough with various fillings: cheese, mushrooms, cabbage or ham. They are cooked in traditional ovens, hence the name perepechi (from pech, meaning “oven”). In 2005, an event called “Perepechi vs. Pizza” took place in Izhevsk, but the dish gained widespread popularity after the performance of the Buranov Babushkas band at the Eurovision Song Contest in 2012. The clip featuring an Udmurt oven had 13 million views on the Internet!

KALMYK DOTUR
Dotur is soup made from mutton offal (liver, kidneys, tripe, intestines) with added belly fat, blood, milk and salt. The giblets are stewed separately, then doused with clear broth. This is a very thick, fatty soup, and it is served with sliced raw onion, sprinkled over dotur in the bowl. This dish has quite a particular taste, But it is probably the most authentic Kalmyk dish, and everyone who wants to understand Kalmyk cuisine has to try dotur.

SAKHALIN SALAD
Sakhalin cuisine is very unique. It combines elements of Russian, Korean, Japanese and Manchurian cuisine. The Sakhalin salad of burdock stalks is equally unusual. Green shoots of burdock are soaked in cold water overnight, then boiled for 20 minutes in salted water. The stalks are peeled, cut in small pieces and tossed into bubbling vegetable oil. Salt and pepper are added, along with soy sauce. The dish is sprinkled with sesame, sunflower or pumpkin seeds, and pressed garlic and onion are then added, after which the dish is stewed to readiness.

TATAR BESHBARMAK
Translated from the Tatar, besh means “five,” and barmak means “finger.” It is the dish of “five fingers” — to be eaten people is chak-chak. To make it, you need eggs, flour, sugar, honey, and melted butter, as well as water and salt. Whipped eggs, flour and salt are mixed into a dough, which must then be rolled out into a layer five millimeters thick. The sheet of dough is then sliced into strips no more than a centimeter wide and cut across into small pieces. These strips are then fried in melted butter. A syrup is made out of water, sugar and honey, which is then combined with the fried pieces of dough. The finished dish is usually piled up on a plate in a heap and served with tea after the dessert sets.

Bashkir Chak-Chak

Bashkiriya is famous for its honey, which is why Bashkir ethnic dishes are not just about meat. The most popular desert of the Bashkir people is chak-chak. To make it, you need eggs, flour, sugar, honey, and melted butter, as well as water and salt. Whipped eggs, flour and salt are mixed into a dough, which must then be rolled out into a layer five millimeters thick. The sheet of dough is then sliced into strips no more than a centimeter wide and cut across into small pieces. These strips are then fried in melted butter. A syrup is made out of water, sugar and honey, which is then combined with the fried pieces of dough. A festival of New Wine
Zolotaya Balka Farming Company

Many types of wine are produced in Crimea, from sparkling and dry table wines to fortified wines such as port, as well as cognac. The best samples are gathered in one place, once a year in September, at the WineFest winemakers’ exhibition-presentation. There is a full programme of tasting new wine, master classes, competitions and interactive presentations.

Sep 21-22

Yelets

The “Antonovka Apples” Festival
Kommunarov Street, Yelets

At the end of September, Yelets celebrates this festival, which is based on the literary legacy of the great writer Ivan Bunin (author of the short story “Antonovka Apples”). The festival recreates the atmosphere of an old Russian town around the end of the 19th and early 20th centuries: merchants and their wives, ladies and their admirers, grammar-school boys and girls stroll along the town’s garden paths. In the city park, the dance programme “Ball of the Gymnasium Students” takes place, while couples seek to escape the crowds in the “Dvoryansky Sad” (Garden of Gentlefolk).

Oct 25

Magadan

Bone Carving Art
Astra Shopping Center, 18A Gorky Street

The international festival “Carving Art of the Peoples of the World” takes place twice a year in Magadan, the capital of Kolyma, Land of Gold. Not only Russian craftsmen, but masters from all around the world take part. Carved bone is a calling card of the region, along with its gold and seafood. The festival includes bone-carving art exhibitions, master classes and a conference on art history.
Taste of Yakutia
Yakutsk, city restaurants
This food festival presents the best dishes of Yakut cuisine, as well as those of other peoples of Siberia, the Arctic and the Far East. Popular city restaurants present everyday dishes alongside festival and ritual specialities that reflect the region’s ethnic culture and traditions. Every people has its own traditional cuisine. The choice here includes venison, beef, horse meat, stroganina (frozen fish or meat in slices), traditional fish dishes, as well as the most delicious desserts, refreshing drinks and pastries, and much more. The Festival holds a special Day of Horse Meat and a Day of Stroganina.

Altai Wintering
Barnaul, Belokurikha, Sovetsky (Lake Svetloye), Zmeinogork, Zarinsk
This festival opens the winter tourist season in the Altai Region. More than 70 events are held during the festival: winter sports competitions, races with huskies, as well as public festivities and fireworks. The most memorable event will be an excursion to the Lebediny (Swan) nature preserve, a frozen lake where over 700 whooping swans come to winter. You can see the snow-white swans moving gracefully along its snowbanks and ice floes.

Jazz at the Philharmonic
Kaliningrad Regional Philharmonic
The “Jazz at the Philharmonic” Music Festival combines jazz and classical music. Alongside famous jazz musicians, well-known artists and ensembles take part. Classical music may be performed in a jazz manner here, while you’ll hear blues played on an organ. These Autumn concerts attract jazz fans from other Russian regions and from neighbouring European countries.

Poetry Biennale
At this year’s 11th International Moscow Poetry Biennale the focus is on the poetic culture of Latin America. Twenty leading poets will visit from Brazil, Cuba, Venezuela, Colombia, Argentina and Mexico. Participants will discuss the understanding of Latin American poetry in Russia — and Russian poetry in Latin America.
Hound Hunting Holiday
The village of Maslovka, Dankovsky district, Lipetsk region.

This ancient pastime of the nobility has been revived thanks to the efforts of local enthusiasts. Hunters assemble with their borzois and falcons at this picturesque location on the River Don in the Dankovsky Region. Guests can watch an “exhibition match” between hounds and foxes. You can also try horseback riding, speak with travellers by a big bonfire, experience local treats and buy distinctive handmade knickknacks made by artisans and craftsmen.

New Year Capital of Russia
Ryazan, city streets and squares.

This year, the New Year Capital of Russia will be Ryazan, a city located 180 kilometers from Moscow. The festival opens on December 7, and continues with the Father Frost parade (the local equivalent of Father Christmas). Later a New Year village opens, as well as a food festival of pryaniki (gingerbread) and mulled wine. The All-Russian Festival of Fire and Light take places from December 28 to January 6. The Ryazan New Year Olympic Games will be held from January 1 to 5, with a food festival on January 3.

The Battle of Knights
Lipetsk region, Yelets district, Yelets village, Rusborg field.

The Rusborg historic re-enactment festival is organized by talented enthusiasts. Every year it gathers about 1,000 re-enactors from both Russia and abroad, as well as tens of thousands of tourists on “Tourist Day.” It is one of the best festivals in the former Soviet Union dedicated to the Viking era, from the 9th to 11th centuries. The festival’s main attraction is a reconstruction of a historical medieval battle. For the entertainment of visitors, there are also musical performances and craft workshops.

Vladivostok Ice Run
Vladivostok, Novik Bay, Novik athletic club.

The Vladivostok Ice Run half marathon launches the annual mass sporting events on the ice of the frozen sea off the coast of Russian island. Every year, about 1,000 people take part in the marathon. The race track runs along the ice of Novik Bay. Participants in the half marathon are experienced athletes as well as beginners. For children, there is a half-kilometer track, with another for amateurs (5 and 10 kilometers), and for the toughest one of 21.1 kilometers.
World Folkloriada
Ufa, Toratau Congress Hall, concert venues of the city

Modelled on the Olympic Games, the World Folkloriada folklore festival is held every four years, and has its own flag, hymn and symbol, with the slogan “Hand in Hand”. The main part of Folkloriada includes performances by artists from around the world, who represent their nations’ traditional music and dancing, exhibit their folk crafts and folk dresses, and hold food fairs. The 4th World Folkloriada will take place in the Republic of Bashkortostan. The 2020 festival may well become the largest in its history — more than 3,000 participants of amateur dance groups and performers from 81 countries are expected. Festival guests can not only watch performances, but learn to play folk instruments, try unusual ethnic dishes, and study different folk arts. Concerts are held daily at different venues around the city.

The 75th Anniversary of Victory
Moscow, Red Square and other city squares

In 2020, Russia marks the 75th anniversary of the victory of the Soviet people in the Great Patriotic War of 1941-1945 (the Eastern Front of World War II). May 9 is a public holiday, Victory Day. Military parades are held in the capital and in all major Russian cities. Later in the day, as part of the “Immortal Regiment” parade, people take to the streets with portraits of their relatives who fought in the war.

UEFA Euro 2020
St. Petersburg, Zenith Arena stadium

The 65,000-seat main football stadium of St. Petersburg will host four matches of the 2020 UEFA European Football Championships (Euro 2020). The Union of European Football Associations (UEFA) has approved holding three group stage matches (June 13, 17 and 22) and one quarterfinal match (July 3) at the St. Petersburg Stadium. The website euro2020.com/tickets began ticket sales on June 12, 2019. The cheapest group stage matches will cost €50, the most expensive €185.

Pacific Tourism Forum
Vladivostok, Russky Island, Far Eastern Federal University

The Pacific Tourism Forum is an annual event held in late May on the campus of the Far Eastern Federal University on Russky Island. Traditionally, the forum’s programme consists of three sections: the business event, the Pacific Tourism Exposition, PITE and the “Day of the Traveller” Festival. This significant event gathers dozens of major Russian and foreign tourism companies and tour operators, and covers tourism industry development not just in Primorye but all around Asia and the Pacific Rim. In 2019, more than 10,000 people attended the forum’s events, while 4,500 people visited the yachting and recreation event Vladivostok Boat Show.
